From the Editors

NOT SINCE DOCTOR FOSTER crashed on to our screens in 2015 has a drama about affairs and subsequent revenge been so glossily filmed for the small screen. This week Jenna Coleman stars in Amazon Prime Video's new drama Wilderness as the wronged wife in this fresh take on infidelity and retribution, a subject that's as old as the ancient Greek myth of Medea. On page 12 we talk to Wilderness writer Marnie Dickens about her inspiration and life-long love of spinning a thrilling yarn.

Also don't miss our chat with the celebrities who are taking part in a special series of the BBC's popular travel challenge, Race across the World. The four stars had to choose a family member to team up with for the trip from Morocco to the far north of Norway, so have no fear, the essential ingredients that make the regular version of the show so good are still there. Expect maximum late-night grumpiness in bus stations up and down Europe.

We also catch up with the supremely talented cellist Sheku Kanneh-Mason who on Saturday will be taking to the stage at the Royal Albert Hall for the Last Night of the Proms. It's a gig he has waited a year to play after the Last Night of 2022 was cancelled following the Queen's death. So how has he been preparing for the biggest concert of his life? By playing football. His love of the sport comes a close second to his love of music and he tells us how much he enjoys tearing up and down the wing for teams across London.

And finally, if you haven't yet discovered the sharp wit and astute writing of our Smart TV columnist, Caroline Frost, we heartily recommend that you do. Caroline would love to hear about what you love and what irks you about TV today. So please don't hold back! Turn to page 29...

RE-CREATING THE 70s

THE BURDEN OF TRUTH

In making a new drama about notorious serial killer Peter Sutcliffe, ITV is treading familiar ground. But, according to the team behind The Long Shadow, this is not the obvious treatment. "A lot of people think they know this story," director Lewis Arnold tells RT. "I think that, actually, there are many elements here that are new, voices who haven't had their stories told."

Arnold, who previously directed Sherwood and Des, adds that "truthfulness" is key. "I think authenticity comes from feeling responsibility to the people whose lives you're reflecting," he says. "We wanted it to reflect 1970s Leeds, so we filmed it using old lenses. For reference, we tried to source as many original photographs as possible, to emulate the time, the place and the people."

Apparently, the effect was so striking that Meg Winterburn, a former police officer advising on the series, was taken aback by how closely the incident room set matched the real location. "She couldn't get over it," Arnold says. "We put a lot into being as truthful as we could across the board."

Another key to that authenticity was being open to feedback from those who were affected by Sutcliffe's crimes – even if that meant making difficult changes.

"When we started making this series it was called The Yorkshire Ripper," Arnold says. "And some of the contributors said that label was triggering for the victims. That led us to change the name and how we framed the story – and the last episode reflects that."

"If you're going to make these dramas, it's about being open to evolve, explore, listen and change, which can be difficult when you're spending money every day. But luckily our producers weren't afraid of those changes or having those conversations." HUW FULLERTON

GRAPEVINE

The TV stories that are getting us talking...

WHAT THE DICKENS?

The festive TV schedules love a bit of Charles Dickens, and this year Sky Arts is serving up a double helping. David Harewood is retracing Dickens's Grand Tour in the two-part Dickens in Italy, while the one-off doc Dickens: Phantoms and Fictions looks at the author's ghost stories. Sky has also given a glimpse of its 2024 offerings, which include three-part nature doc Secret World of Sound with David Attenborough.

JONESING FOR LAUGHS

From documentaries and panel shows to travelogues, Rosie Jones has had a meteoric rise – and now the comic has co-written a sitcom. In Disability Benefits, she plays a woman who turns to drug dealing to pay the bills. Jones is in good company: her co-writer on the six-part series is Veep's Peter Fellows, and Bad Sisters' Sharon Horgan is executive producer.

DOOM SERVICE

Has ITV found its answer to The Traitors? It promises "trickery, secrecy and deception" in Fortune Hotel. Stephen Mangan presides over a series of challenges in a Caribbean resort, where contestants swap ten suitcases that could contain nothing, a £250,000 prize, or an "early checkout". Producers say it channels "the glamour of White Lotus with the skulduggery of Glass Onion".

DISNEY MINUS

Cost-cutting at Disney has led to it writing off shows before they've aired. Despite being filmed already, neither British series Nautilus – a prequel to Jules Verne's 20,000 Leagues under the Sea – nor US kids fantasy series The Spiderwick Chronicles will appear on Disney+. Other broadcasters may pick them up – watch this space. ROBIN PARKER

TEN QUESTIONS WITH

JAMES BLUNT

The singer on beating the haters, dealing with fame – and why he'll never stop singing You're Beautiful

Your 2005 mega-hit You're Beautiful opens with the line "My life is brilliant", sung twice. Almost 20 years on, is that still the case?

Yes! Sorry to be smug about it, but it's really great. I drift nomadically between Ibiza, the UK and Switzerland. I'm very lucky. And I've got a new record deal, so the world is in danger of hearing more music by me for a while yet.

How much time do you spend in the UK?

I come here to do the graft – I commute to work here for about three months over the winter as the studios, the writers, producers and my band are generally here. I've also got the pub [Blunt owns The Fox and Pheasant in Chelsea] – I'll be in there at least three times a week when I'm in town. I head back to Ibiza to see my family at weekends. That's not a bad way of life really, is it?

This is the fourth time you've played a Radio 2 live festival. How important is it to you?

Radio 2 has supported me through thick and thin. They've championed every single album and I'm hugely grateful. It's the station I listen to, it has a great balance of music, so I feel at home. When I got the call to play, I was there with bells on. I've not played Victoria Park in Leicester, but I do know that the further north you play in the UK, the rowdier and better the audience.

What's it like having fans who've grown up with you?

As we go out on our eighth tour, it's remarkable to see those fans with the loyalty, energy, effort and money to come to pretty much every show. Now there are also the people whose parents forced my first album [Back to Bedlam] upon them on long car journeys, who had no choice but to be indoctrinated. That younger generation turned up knowing all the words. My concerts are suddenly a very different beast.

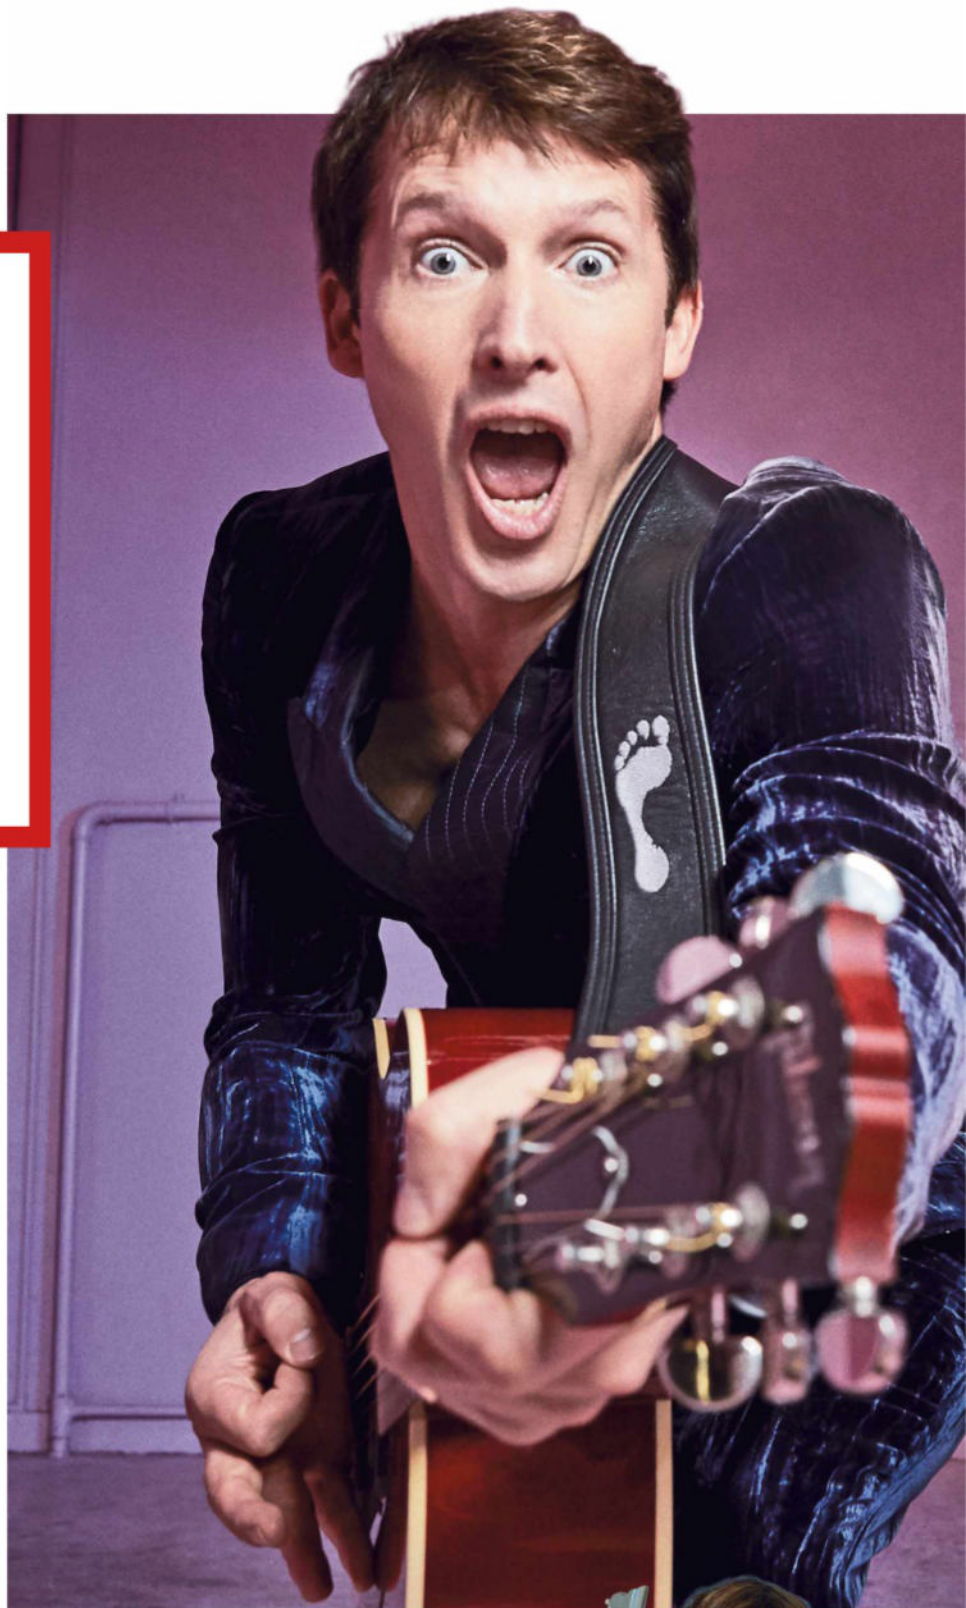

What's the most unusual thing a fan has sent you?

Drilled to a chimney on my roof is a weather vane that a fan crafted out of metal painted black, featuring all the graphics from the Back to Bedlam album cover: a girl sweeping her hair, me walking and playing a guitar. The detail is absolutely phenomenal.

Even people who aren't fans of your music enjoy your engagement with social media, where you show a funny, self-deprecating side. Is that a defence mechanism?

I hit it big and there was a backlash, and at times it was hard to work out why it got so aggressive. Then came Twitter [now called X], which reveals a lot of darkness in humans' hearts, but it also let me chip in and point out some of the silly things people say. I'll remove any ego or emotion from the conversation and join in, laughing at myself while someone else is taking themselves so seriously. The Daily Mail prints a picture of me on a boat and someone tweets that I'm a w*r, I can go, "Yes, but I'm the one on the boat." It's the same thing with critics – I don’t think I’ve ever had a good review. Often you want to say, “Well, it’s just not for you.”

Did your Army career prepare you for the music business?

Our tour bus is run like a tank on military operations. My tour manager is the troop sergeant, the crew are the non-commissioned officers and the band are the troopers... though we might drink a little bit more; the tour bus is a mobile bar, effectively. After shows, soldiers I’ve known will often knock and come in for a drink.

Having made it big early on, do you feel the pressure to come up with another monster hit?

Record labels want to get songs on the radio, and these tend to be the most generic ones. I’d much rather we picked the best song. When I try to write a song for the radio, they tend to be slightly empty.

As a former judge on The X Factor in Australia, how do you feel about talent shows?

I didn’t enjoy it, and I struggle with The X Factor, because it’s more TV show than music competition. The winners are always the judges’ choices rather than the ones who do best each week. Seeing these hopefuls with their 15 minutes, and their dreams shattered for ratings, I find quite painful.

And finally... how does it feel to perform You’re Beautiful for the millionth time?

It riles me immensely when people say I must be bored of it. Why on earth would I be? It’s the cornerstone of my career – it bought me this house! It’s not necessarily the biggest moment of the concert, because fans have their own favourites, but I would never entertain the notion of dropping it. There’d be a ton of men going, “Well, I was only here for that one...” ROBIN PARKER

RARE FIND
Geoffrey Munn (right) on Antiques Roadshow with the £1m Fabergé flower

Antiques Roadshow jewellery specialist
Geoffrey Munn on how he got the antiques bug, and sorting out the fakes from the pieces that are worth a fortune...

LIFE’S A JUMBLE When I was young, I loved antique shops and jumble sales. I didn’t get the A-levels for university, so had to find a job. I answered an advert for court jeweller Wartski and was plunged into this extraordinary, rarefied environment bristling with royal warrants and links to the crown. I stayed for 45 years, rising to managing director. I first joined Antiques Roadshow in 1989.

HIDDEN GEMS Your heart skips a beat when someone brings you an item with provenance showing its origin or history, and it’s beautiful and made with real craftsmanship. A person loved, wore and venerated it. It is a silent witness to our past.

SINKING FEELING The world of antique jewellery is full of fakes – they’re often bigger, better and signed more than originals. They frequently come onto the show, but I don’t film them as I don’t want to embarrass the owner.

SAXON GOLD The most emotionally valuable item for me from the show was a heavy ring of pure gold that somebody had found pulling up a hedge in Norfolk. I painted in the context: it’s gold, so the Saxon owner would be high status, he’s hurtling along on a cold, misty morning and it slips from his finger. The excitement that we have in finding an item is equal and opposite to the grief of the person who lost it – but people mostly don’t think about those “ghosts”.

MILLION POUND FLOWER In 2017, an extraordinary Fabergé pear blossom (below) was brought to the Roadshow at the Black Country Living Museum in Dudley. It looked as fresh as if it had been picked that day. It had carved nephrite leaves, and pink flowers centred with diamond dewdrops. Nothing like it had been on the market for years, so I was confident in valuing it at £1 million – more than I’ve valued anything else on the Roadshow.

CHANEL
FREEDOM

The legendary French designer liberated women, says Jerry Hall – and we should still be grateful

COCO CHANEL MADE me who I am. My father was a staff sergeant under General Patton during the war. After the liberation of France, Coco gave several men who served in Patton's US Third Army a bottle of her famous perfume, Chanel No 5, to take home. As a child in Texas I would look at that bottle on my mother's dressing table with wonder. My sister and I weren't allowed to touch it, and my mother would dot just a little on if she was going out, which wasn't often. To me it seemed the most glamorous thing in the world.

Our life in Texas wasn't rosy. My father had come back from the war traumatised. He had nightmares and he gambled away our farm. But that bottle of scent was the start of a dream for me; I knew I had to enter the beautiful and intoxicating world of fashion.

Which is exactly what I did. When I was 16, I left my small town and went to Paris on my own, with a backpack and a sleeping bag. I was "discovered" and, wonderfully, found myself working as a model at Chanel.

I had missed Coco by a year – she had died in 1971 – but her presence still hung over her boutique and apartments on Rue Cambon. There I learnt to love the glamour of Coco Chanel's designs but also to understand their liberating impact for women. She got rid of

SUITS YOU

and Jerry Hall in Chanel

constricting long skirts and tight waists and made clothes that were very practical but elegant at the same time. Coco made women's clothes more like men's and yet, brilliantly, still ladylike. Their elegance came from their simplicity; they gave you a lot of confidence.

They were also practical. In Chanel you could live your life, go out to the country, go for a walk. Her clothes gave freedom to women.

'Coco made women's clothes more like men's, yet ladylike'

She understood us: that's why her flap handbag is such a classic. It's so useful, while still being glamorous. The chain strap doesn't wear out like leather straps and, because you don't have your hands full, you can do things – like smoke and drink at the same time, in my case.

I also learnt that she came from a difficult background. Abandoned by a dissolute father after her mother died, Coco was brought up by nuns. She thrived because she was determined to make a success of her life. She started with hats and went on to be a great fashion designer and to create perfumes that still sell in their millions.

OF COURSE, I think fashion is important – it's been such a big part of my life. I love clothes. And I love the art of clothes. I would rather have an old Chanel suit than a lot of brand-new outfits that are very expensive and you only wear a few times. There's no better investment than longevity, and it's much more eco-friendly to not keep buying things and then get rid of them. So, I will be wearing my Chanel suits until I'm a very old lady, which I practically am!

When I think of Coco, I think of that very kind gesture to those soldiers – giving them a beautiful thing to take home to their wives. I think of the Chanel dresses in my wardrobe that have marked some of the big moments of my life and are now handed down to my daughters to create another generation of connections. But most of all I think of a woman who understood and liberated other women. Merçi, mademoiselle.

A WOMAN PUSHED TO THE EDGE

It's an accident waiting to happen...
Writer Marnie Dickens reveals why revenge is sweet for Jenna Coleman on a road trip across America with Oliver Jackson-Cohen

THERE ARE TWO killer lines right at the start of the first episode of Wilderness, each voiced by a wronged woman serving notice.

The first, delivered with no little menace, is from Taylor Swift. The superstar's new version of her 2017 single Look What You Made Me Do is the Amazon Prime Video revenge drama's theme. "I don't like your little games... The role you made me play of the fool... No, I don't like you," she sings. The song is an update that has been recorded as part of Swift's ongoing remake project to thwart the cash-in ambitions of Scooter Braun, the divisive music industry executive who bought the rights to her back catalogue.

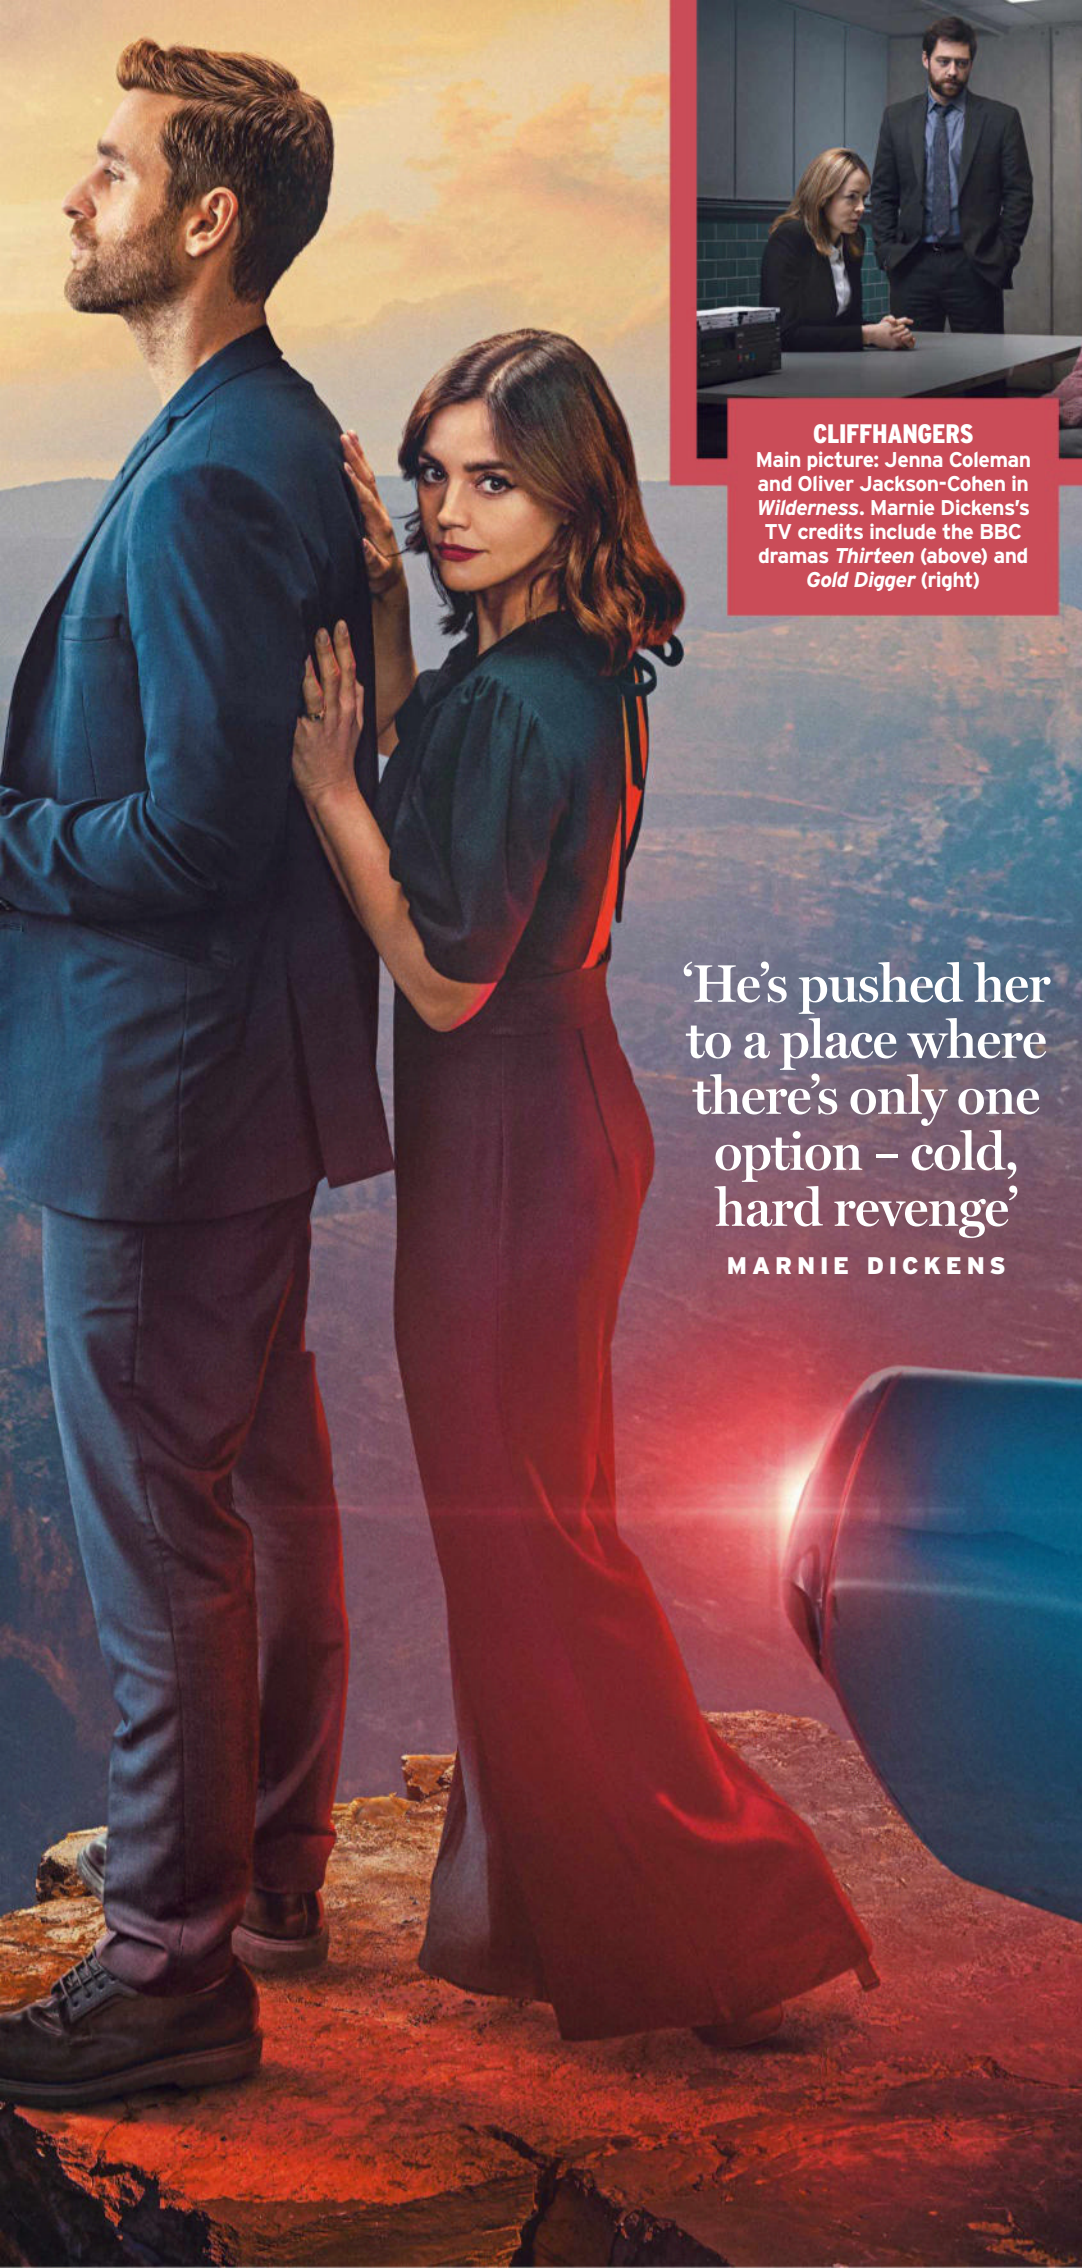

Then, it's the turn of the show's star, Jenna Coleman. Acknowledging those who warned her of the perils of trusting men, cuckolded wife Liv, in a voiceover that calmly alerts us to her plans, salutes the "Greek chorus of all women telling me it's never safe".

Like Swift, Liv is on a mission to reclaim her agency. It's a connection not lost on screenwriter Marnie Dickens, who is understandably thrilled to have the song open her drama. While she says she can't speak for the musician, she says, "The day [Taylor] said yes was a win for the show and for me personally."

And so, from the off, this six-part drama (tagline: "Look what he made her do"), playing on the primal fear inherent in the Great American Outdoors, deftly puts viewers on the edge of their seats, and on notice. Here be monsters – and they're mostly unfaithful blokes.

"The lyric at the heart of Taylor's song speaks directly to our heroine Liv's central dilemma," says Dickens of a "sync" that's a huge coup for a show adapted from Welsh former journalist Beverley Jones's 2019 novel. "The man she loves has betrayed her, lied to her and ripped her reality out from under her. He has pushed her to a place where there's only one option – cold, hard revenge."

As for Coleman's line, it's essential for mapping out "where we go across the series, to Liv's whole experience, and to where she's come from", notes Dickens. "That comes from her background as she fights to be more than the sum of her parts – at the same time as ignoring the advice and the experiences of her mother in terms of men who do women wrong."

Liv and new husband Will (Oliver Jackson-Cohen) are freshly transplanted to New York, courtesy of his job. The British couple have a luxury loft apartment, but the terms of Will's visa mean Liv can't work. Never mind, they're love's young dream... until high-flying smoothie Will betrays Liv's trust.

In a major play for reconciliation, Will tries to bribe – sorry, compensate – Liv with the honeymoon they never had. It's the "trip of a lifetime... white-water rafting, Arizona, Vegas, the lot". Having seen how her mum back home (Claire Rushbrook) remains ruinously obsessed with the man who abandoned her years previously, Liv is prepared to forgive and maybe eventually forget. Then, right before the trip, she discovers another incriminating message – complete with lurid in flagrante video – on Will's laptop...

LIV KEEPS HER cool and her counsel. She pushes on with the holiday, plotting to use their Wild West road trip to get even with her husband. And while their powder-blue, soft-top Ford Mustang would have perhaps raised eyebrows on the M40, the US backdrop also supplies an atmosphere that Dickens's native Buckinghamshire wouldn't.

"Beverley had done that road trip and felt it had a beauty but always a proximity to danger. It's that feeling that you couldn't be more at risk from the elements. Your smallness as a human being becomes very apparent. It's the kind of place where you step the wrong way and you've stepped off the edge of a ravine.

"A lot of unfortunate accidents happen, and Liv uses that to her advantage," continues the 37-year-old writer. "New York represents the civilised world. But the wilderness is where we get in touch with our bestial, primal selves."

Dickens studied history at Oxford and secured her entry into the production side of TV via >

WRONGED WOMEN

◁ a summer job on the set of Sally Wainwright's 2006 drama The Amazing Mrs Pritchard.

After graduating she "ping-ponged" between production work on Law and Order and Spooks. Her true interest, though, lay in the characters and scripts. "I felt excited and lucky when I could build a rapport with actors or run scenes with them. And when scripts came in, I'd tear through them on my way to handing them out to other people."

Writing, she realised, was her true passion. Her first original drama was the 2016 BBC3 thriller Thirteen, starring Jodie Comer as a woman who has been held captive in a cellar for 13 years. Her second, 2019's Gold Digger,

'The wilderness is where we get in touch with our primal selves' starred Julia Ormond as a woman who falls for a man half her age. "Since I was really young, I was always writing nonsensical stories. When I was a teenager, I had a guitar and wrote gloomy love songs. I've always been writing, one way or another."

Dickens's love of, and facility for, a "propulsive, twisty-turny" plot lies in part in literary canon – and in what many of them missed. "I read those classics as a kid, as we all have to, and I sometimes found the female characters a bit lacking. Or they didn't have agency. So, for me it's Vanity Fair. Here's Becky Sharp, this character who rode out the story with utter gumption. I remember saying to somebody how much I loved her. And they said: 'Well, that says a lot about you if you think she's a heroine!'"

LOVE RAT
Will (Oliver Jackson-Cohen) is going to pay for his infidelity...

Like Liv in Wilderness and the lead characters in Thirteen and Gold Digger, Thackeray's sharp-elbowed Sharp was a heroine with purpose. "That sort of thing is interesting to me. It's a common thread between those three shows. They're about women defying the boxes society is trying to put us in the whole time."

That said, Dickens loves a good, glossy yarn, too. "My cultural background, unapologetically, is loving TV – those pulpy, fun soaps, or brilliant shows like Buffy. I'd love to be able to lean on classical literature. But the truth is that fun storytelling and betrayal all comes from classic TV dramas, not books."

DOES SHE HAVE personal experience of betrayal? "Not the classic betrayal like in this show. I've been in slightly messier situations! [In those] it wouldn't entirely be clear that I had a reason to feel wronged. But whether you're the cheater or the cheated, most people can relate to the intoxicating pull of an affair, or having your heart smashed. It does feel like that's the most relatable thing about this drama: what it is to be in love, and then what it is to be heartbroken."

We came in on a quote so, in the manner of Wilderness's delicious cliffhanger dynamics, let's go out on one, too. "We're voyeurs," intones Liv in Dickens's pin-sharp script. "We want the blood and the dead girls on slabs and a look inside the mind of the sick f who did it. I guess in this case, that sick f is me."

We don't like to be rude, Marnie, but, is that you? "Ha ha! I guess I'd say, aren't we all? So, yes, I suppose I am in a way."

To be fair to Dickens, to write so convincingly, a screenwriter has to believe in their material to their marrow. There's a professional reason for her being that way.

"Yes! Thank you for giving me that get-out-of-jail card!" CRAIG McLEAN

THE TOURIST BBC iPlayer
Jamie Dornan's amnesiac fugitive cuts a swathe through the desolate Australian outback, with the sun-baked scenery defining the BBC drama as much as the plot. For the second series, the action is set to relocate to Northern Ireland, which is sure to bring new, albeit different, striking backgrounds to the action.

BREAKING BAD Netflix
Believe it or not, the acclaimed antiheroic journey of Walter White was originally supposed to be set in California. Instead, the wannabe drugs kingpin succumbs to darkness in the bright, striking desert of Albuquerque, New Mexico, giving the series a unique visual identity – especially when Walt (Bryan Cranston) and Jesse (Aaron Paul) are left stranded far from civilisation in one of the drama's earliest and best episodes.

WILD AT HEART

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

More epic dramas that take us to remote places

THE ENGLISH BBC iPlayer

This glossy Emily Blunt-fronted drama won acclaim last year for its remarkably unromantic take on the Wild West. Actually filmed in Spain, it makes the American frontier look as vast, lawless and perilous – but undeniably awe-inspiring – as when real-life gunslingers roamed the plains.

TRAPPED

Amazon Prime Video

A murder in an isolated Icelandic town forces local cop Andri (Olafur Darri Olafsson, centre, with Ingvar Eggert Sigurdsson and Ilmur Kristjansdottir) to hunt for killers without back-up, while snows and tension rise every day. Airing on BBC4 in the UK, Trapped was Iceland's most expensive TV series ever – with a fair portion of the budget surely going on bearskin rugs and hot water bottles.

THE TERROR BBC iPlayer

The real disappearance of a Victorian expedition inspired this acclaimed horror series starring (from left) Jared Harris, Ciaran Hinds and Tobias Menzies, which sees the crew of the HMS Terror stranded in Arctic waters when the seas freeze around their ships. Frostbite, hunger and supernatural horrors follow in one of the most inhospitable environments on Earth.

YELLOWJACKETS Paramount+

A plane carrying high-school football prodigies crashes deep in the Canadian wilderness, forcing the all-girl team to turn to drastic measures – and questionable activities – to stay alive. Think Lord of the Flies, but with more teenage angst and no conch. The cast includes (below from left) Melanie Lynskey, Christina Ricci, Tawny Cypress and Juliette Lewis. HUW FULLERTON

FORTITUDE Now

Horrors and strange creatures abound on a remote Arctic island in Sky Atlantic's star-studded drama (the cast includes, above from left, Stanley Tucci, Sofie Grabol and Christopher Eccleston among others). Suffice to say, if Fortitude really did exist far off the coast of Norway, you probably wouldn't be rushing to book your next holiday there, no matter how bleakly beautiful it looks on screen.

LET BATTLE COMMENCE!

Four celebrities compete in a no-holds-barred race from the Sahara to the Arctic Circle. And they're taking their mums, dads and sisters... what could possibly go wrong?

DURING THREE SERIES, Race across the World has challenged ordinary folk to leave their mobile phones, credit cards and daily lives behind to travel thousands of miles, in an attempt to win £20,000.

Now four pairs of celebrities are embarking on the same adventure, swapping their arguably more pampered lives for a journey spanning 24 countries, from Marrakech in Morocco to Tromsø, north of the Arctic Circle in Norway.

They'll wave goodbye to their coterie of managers, assistants and publicists and take along a member of their own family. Will tensions flare? Will parents put their celebrity offspring in their place? And how will they cope slumming it in some decidedly non-A list accommodation? RT gets the lowdown from the stars and their travelling companions.

ALEX BERESFORD

BROADCASTER AND METEOROLOGIST, 42, and his father Noel

Alex, you and your wife, Imogen McKay, got married just before taking this trip. How come you decided to take your dad?

ALEX You don't get to spend this sort of time with your parents as an adult. Imogen was upset, as she loves travelling and she's a fan of the show but, as much as I love her and spending time with her, I'm not sure this was the honeymoon she'd want! With hindsight, I think I made the right decision.

What were you most worried about?

NOEL Getting lost in countries where I didn't speak the language. But as we got into it, Alex handled it very well.

ALEX Not having instant contact with my wife and son – I wasn't ready to have my phone taken off me as soon as we arrived at Gatwick. And I was anxious each time we got to a checkpoint, wondering when we'd get to the next. There's a fine line between panic and excitement.

What surprised you most about your journey?

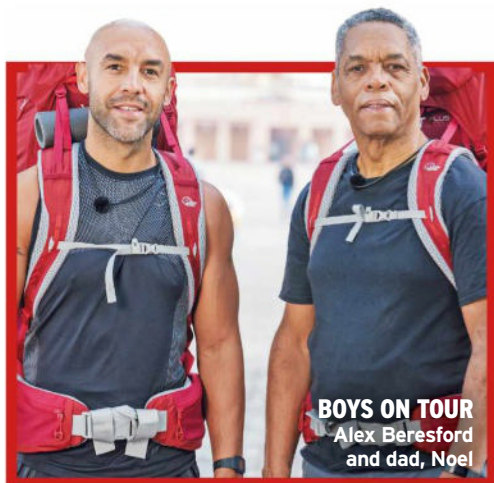

ALEX Some places were literally cashless – you're completely dependent on people booking your travel on their credit cards. When ▷ ◁ we felt utterly stuck, an angel would appear and save our day. You can't do the race without the kindness of other people, and I think I'd be less hesitant to help a stranger now.

How did you get on as travelling companions?

ALEX I was surprised when Dad kicked off about some sub-par accommodation, as normally I'd be the one to complain. But I was just thinking of the budget!

NOEL It was special to see Alex in his line of work, to see how he responded to the cameras and handled situations. I thought, "Yes, that's my boy!"

MELANIE BLATT

SINGER, 48, and her mum Helene

Why did you say yes to this?

MEL Basically, the unknown... This was a chance to challenge myself to do things I'd never usually do in a million years.

Why did you pick your mum?

MEL She wasn't my first choice! It had been offered to me and Shaz from All Saints, but I was pretty sure she wouldn't be up for it, as she's got two young kids. Mum was exactly the right person – she loves travelling, and the show.

'There was quite a lot of eye-rolling, but that's normal...'

MELANIE BLATT

GIRLS ON TOUR
Melanie Blatt and mum Helene

Helene, how did you feel about being Melanie's second choice?

HELENE Excited! At my age, any experience is good, so I was ready to give it a go. My husband and I once took a year off to travel the world on a budget, but a lot of these countries – and languages – were new to me.

Apart from your phone and credit cards, what did you miss?

MEL Definitely, luxury. With my scoliosis [Mel was diagnosed as a child], it's hard to get comfortable on a 24-hour bus ride, so I didn't get to sleep much.

Was there any tension?

MEL Quite a lot of eye-rolling, but that's normal...

HELENE Mel was cross when she lost her train ticket and we had to buy a new one. I had to tell her to calm down.

What did you learn about yourselves?

HELENE Travelling is my passion and it made me even more determined to do more.

MEL I still don't know what the hell I'm doing and I still take each day as it comes, but I learnt to be patient and forgive myself. I can get down on myself and think I'm a bit useless, but I can get from one country to the other, so that's something.

HARRY JUDD

McFLY DRUMMER, 37,
and his mum Emma, 63

Why did you sign up for this?

HARRY I joined McFly at 17 and, while I've been lucky enough to travel for gigs, I've never scratched that itch for adventure.

And why did you choose your mum?

HARRY It was either Mum or Dad. I'm quite like my dad – I don't think we'd have made it to four weeks!

EMMA He's exactly like his dad, it would have been ghastly. They'd have been battling to do everything.

HARRY We pitched it to Dad as if either one of them could go, but we knew he'd come up with a good excuse not to. Mum was in straightaway, no questions asked. She'd always wanted to volunteer as a nurse in Africa, but never got to, due to family commitments.

Harry, was it hard to leave your three young children?

HARRY This was the longest I've been away from them; when I left them I was choked up. It was a shock to the system. I really missed my wife. It was the first time in years we've not spoken every day and, with time to reflect and appreciate her, I fell in love with her all over again.

What did you get out of spending so much time together?

EMMA When Harry left home, he went into a world we didn't understand and haven't found it easy to slot into. I felt I'd lost him, to an extent. We never get to chat and this trip gave us the chance to reconnect. I feel so much happier now, to know he's still my boy.

HARRY It was amazing talking to Mum about her life. In a month of 16-hour journeys, you get to talk about every person you've ever met, every situation you've been in.

Did you revert to a mother-child relationship?

EMMA No, I was the child! I found the pace hard. I got muddled and dippy. Luckily, Harry knows that, and would take charge.

BILLY MONGER, BROADCASTER AND FORMER RACING DRIVER, 24, and his sister Bonny, 22

Billy, when you were recuperating after your life-changing crash aged 17, you said that Bonny was your “one true hero”. Is this why you picked her as your travelling companion?

BILLY We’d been discussing travelling together for a couple of years, so it made sense. We’re both pretty much newbies at this, so we took a shot in the dark.

BONNY Neither of us had watched the show before, but the concept looked exciting.

Did you enjoy it as a chance to travel or did the competitive instinct quickly kick in?

BILLY At first, I took time to check out the places we were visiting. But that quickly went out of the window – instead it was a case of “how do we win this thing?” Being a racing driver, I’m naturally very competitive, but Bonny is, too – when board games come out at Christmas, she always has to win!

BONNY It definitely got more competitive towards the end of each stage.

What did you learn about yourselves?

BONNY I’m very impatient. And Bill’s got more common sense than I thought.

BILLY I’ll take that! I was surprised by how well we worked as a team. We are very different – Bonny’s quite stubborn. I thought we’d clash, but we complemented each other.

Were there any bust-ups?

BONNY Strops rather than arguments.

But if the cameras hadn’t been there...

BILLY As a brother and a sister travelling together, it got intense and we got frustrated but, actually, it brought us closer together.

‘I was amazed at mum’s resilience. I’d never seen her run!’

HARRY JUDD

HARRY I was the youngest of three, a mummy’s boy, but as soon as I left home it was never like that again. She thought she had me for a couple more years, but in the space of a month I had joined a band and was gone.

Did you reveal any hidden strengths?

EMMA Harry was brilliant at budgeting – within a couple of days he had it all planned out without writing anything down.

HARRY We had an agreement: if either of us felt it was too much, we’d tell each other and we’d stop. I was amazed at Mum’s resilience. I’d never seen her run before! Since we got back, Mum’s been pushing herself with exercise, diet, her attitude to life. She’s booked a trip to India already.

With your husband?

EMMA No! I’m going with the vicar. He’s leading a tour of the east of the country. My husband’s not a risk-taker – he says, “I like David Attenborough to tell me about it while I have a G&T.” I’m also taking the Eurostar to France for the first time. I needed a kick up the arse and I’ve got it!

Billy, as a double amputee, how accessible did you find the places you visited?

BILLY For six years now, I’ve learnt to adapt my life to make things work.

Some places were more accessible than others – that’s just the reality of travel. What’s different is that, usually, I’m taken care of, with cars taking me from hotels to the circuit. This was all on us!

‘You have to be the biggest version of yourself’

How do you prepare for a career-defining starring role at the Last Night of the Proms? On the football pitch, says star cellist Sheku Kanneh-Mason

SOLOISTS AT THE Last Night of the Proms are in the spotlight like nowhere else in classical music, but that may be doubly true for the dazzling young cellist Sheku Kanneh-Mason.

A sensation from the moment he won the 2016 BBC Young Musician of the Year at the age of 17, Kanneh-Mason has ascended one career peak after another – from performing at the wedding of Prince Harry and Meghan Markle to recording Elgar’s Cello Concerto with Sir Simon Rattle, via any number of rapturously received live performances all over the world.

With seven siblings of comparable musical gifts, the Nottingham-based Kanneh-Mason family have all found fame, but it was Sheku who first made an impact, and it was he who was due to make his Last Night debut in 2022.

Sadly, the death of the Queen meant the Proms shut down two days early and his performance was put back a year. But on Saturday Kanneh-Mason will finally walk out under the famous bust of Proms co-founder Sir Henry Wood to take his place with the BBC Symphony Orchestra and Chorus under the baton of American conductor Marin Alsop. Making her third appearance at the gala event of the world’s biggest classical music festival, Alsop has called the Last Night “a magical experience”. What does it mean for Kanneh-Mason? “The Proms are such a wonderful celebration of music. To be there at the end? That’s really special.”

Kanneh-Mason is talking on Zoom from the home in south-east London he shares with his violinist brother Braimah and a friend. He is now 24, forging a life that isn’t exclusively about the cello, involving activities that might make other musicians quiver. Few world-class instrumentalists risk their limbs and fingers on the football field. “Football is my second love after the cello,” he says. “I play on the wing for a ▶ < few teams in London. I like to use my pace, I'm quite skilful but not very strong."

Doesn't he worry about getting injured? "I could injure myself chopping vegetables! I think the fear of getting injured makes it more likely. And feeling physically well, eating well and exercising all helps you mentally when you spend a lot of time sitting in one place with the cello."

This year's Proms are already widely regarded as a success – innovative programming coupled with bravura interpretations of well-known pieces have proved popular with audiences. Kanneh-Mason, swept up in the excitement himself, was at Kazakhstani pianist Alim Beisembayev's performance of Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No 2. It was an experience he describes simply as "amazing".

He couldn't, however, be there in person for the concert that mattered to him most – his pianist sister Isata playing Prokofiev's Piano Concerto No 3. He relied instead on the 'Racism is something that we've had to deal with all our lives'

BBC broadcast. "I didn't hear her practising this piece, and somehow I forget what her playing is like until I see her on stage – this was just incredible."

The much-lauded Isata, who won the prestigious Leonard Bernstein Award in 2021, is three years older than Kanneh-Mason and has been a constant presence in his life. "I think we learn a lot from each other," he says. "We're quite different musicians in many ways, but we both have this goal of making something as good and as intense and detailed as possible."

How are you different? "I think the personality of expression is different. Isata has the ability to see lots of things at the same time very quickly. I love that. With me, it's more about the 'colour' of the sounds. I sometimes need a pianist to see the bigger picture."

The ecstatic reception Isata received for her performance was clouded by a racist post on social media, which the siblings' mother, Kadiatu, described as "really hurtful", adding that abuse was something the family "had had to deal with ever since we came to public notice".

How did the experience leave Kanneh-Mason feeling? "It's very frustrating, because for that to have become a focus in our minds after such a special occasion... it was difficult to deal with, particularly for Isata. It's something that we've dealt with on smaller and bigger levels all our lives, and in my parents' lives. But that doesn't mean it's not painful."

Kanneh-Mason recalls his childhood experience of prejudice was "pretty constant – comments in the playground or football, or just the looks I would get at school music events". It wasn't so much a case of "What are you doing here?" as what he calls the "flip side": "People saying, 'You're only here because...' That's also really difficult."

A decade later his achievements speak for themselves and the world's concert promoters are clamouring for him to appear. Before the Last Night, he is due to play with the Aurora Orchestra, including at the Elbphilharmonie in Hamburg – his favourite venue. "It's got the best acoustics, the best detail. And you get a cool view from the dressing rooms!" But the Royal Albert Hall, and the Last Night, require something extra. "You have to be the biggest version of yourself in such a space," he says. "It's more about the gestures and the timings and the expression of the ideas."

The Last Night also comes with raucousness and flag-waving and, of course, Rule, Britannia!

– sung this year by star Norwegian soprano Lise Davidsen. No doubt old arguments will resurface about the nature of the patriotism the Last Night embodies, but it's not an issue that overly exercises Kanneh-Mason. "There's nothing inherently wrong with waving a flag," he says. "It always depends on context." And the ongoing debate about the suitability – or not – of Rule, Britannia!, Thomas Arne's rousing paean to England's triumphs? "I don't quite see why that song is so important to people, but it's not really something I've involved myself with."

WHAT SORT OF Last Night would Kanneh-Mason programme? "It would be a bit different – and probably not as popular with the audience! I'm into older folk tunes. There's so much really beautiful British music, I've been listening to a lot of old Scottish and Welsh songs."

His family have Welsh heritage but it's their African-Caribbean lineage that Kanneh-Mason will be honouring at the Last Night, with a programme that includes Samuel Coleridge-Taylor's Deep River. It's one of the British mixed-race composer's 24 Negro Melodies, a series that Coleridge-Taylor (1875–1912) said was his version of "what Brahms has done for the Hungarian folk music, Dvorak for the Bohemian, and Grieg for the Norwegian". "It's a piece I always played with my family. That makes it special. I've got to know the music of Coleridge-Taylor over the past few years, I think he has some beautiful melodies."

Tradition is always on show at the Last Night, and one of the newer ones is that of soloists dressing up. Any plans, Sheku? "Oh, I'll make an effort! I haven't got anything yet, but I will." So, look out for Kanneh-Mason's sartorial statement – and listen, too. You can be sure the rest of the world will be doing both. SIMON O'HAGAN

'WE MAY BE NEXT...'

The invasion of Ukraine changed everything for Russia's neighbours – Katya Alder meets the people living in the shadow of Putin

THE FRONT LINE may be Ukraine, but all of Russia's neighbours are nervous, says Katya Alder in Living Next Door to Putin, her new two-part BBC1 documentary exploring how life has changed for people living in the shadow of war on a scale not seen in Europe since 1945.

The BBC's Europe editor has been covering news across the continent for more than two decades, and relished the opportunity to explore some of the less familiar countries on her reporting patch. She travels from Poland, through the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania to the northern tip of Norway – all countries that share the anxiety and tension that comes with being in close proximity to western Russia.

"Often in current affairs, Europe means France Italy, Spain," she explains. "The countries I visited are less talked about. I'm following the impact of the war across the whole of Europe and beyond. This is all about the ripple effect."

In Poland, Alder meets some of the 1.5 million refugees who have arrived from Ukraine, together with Polish citizens who have stepped up to help them, occasionally defying government regulations to do so. Alder asks one host, Sabina, why she opened her doors to more than 20 strangers, and the reply she receives is simple: "We have to help; we may be next."

Alder's road trip takes her through countries where the war has reopened old wounds for a region still reeling from the legacy of the Soviet Union. She meets people finding their own ways of fighting back, be it travelling to Ukraine to take up arms or building armoured ambulances in their garages to send to the front line.

One young Lithuanian tells Alder that he got in his car as soon as news broke that Russia had invaded and drove to Ukraine in order to help escort civilians to safety. "When I asked him why, he said, 'We understand'. He was too young to remember Soviet occupation, but these scars are felt by young people, too."

'Baltic states share a history. They bleed with Ukrainians'

This sense of comradeship across borders is very real, says Alder. "This is about living next door to Vladimir Putin, sharing a history – often very troubled – with Russia. The Baltic states were occupied by Soviet Russia. They bleed with the Ukrainians, metaphorically."

While in Lithuania, Alder visits the Hill of Crosses, one of the country's most famous landmarks, where citizens brought thousands of crosses during Soviet occupation. Remembering her visit, she says now: "You don't need to be religious to be moved. It's a symbol of peaceful, determined resistance over many years. There's a sense of pain, loss and pride in their nation. You just imagine who carried all the crosses there over the decades. It's very moving."

There were some surprises, too. In Estonia, for instance, Alder is invited to watch saunas being camouflaged and sent to the Ukrainian army on the front line. "I thought, 'Isn't that a bit superficial?'" she confides. "But I learnt that the Estonian army doesn't go anywhere without saunas. They have the same sauna culture as Finland. It's all about morale."

"We spoke to a Ukrainian commander who told us, 'My men haven't changed their uniforms in five weeks. With these units, they have the chance for a shower and to feel more human.'" She pauses. "We saw lots of tears making this programme, many of them male tears, which you don't often see."

EVEN IN NORWAY, Alder discovers the unexpected trials of war – including for one wife and mother who is originally from St Petersburg. "She still takes the train across Russia to visit her family, but she lives in absolute fear the whole way, petrified that her son will say something out loud about the war. He's just six."

Despite witnessing so much loss and heartbreak on her travels, Alder remains inspired by those she meets and their endeavours. "I reject the term 'ordinary people'. There is no such thing. Everybody has a story to tell. These are people who have stepped out of their comfort zone to help strangers. They are examples of resilience and kinship. You feel the weight of what they're going through, but also a sense of hope." CAROLINE FROST

ENGLAND ARE IN FREE FALL

And they risk being boring losers to Argentina unless they can find some form, says Simon Barnes

THE LUCK OF the rugby union World Cup draw has many people saying that England could make the quarter- or perhaps even semi-finals without being at their best.

Playing badly might not be the problem – difficulties will arise if they play very badly indeed. And, alas, over the past two years England have slid gently but decisively from bad to very bad to very bad indeed.

All of which makes it crucial that England get something from their opening match against Argentina on Saturday. They could qualify for the quarter-finals even if they lose to Argentina, but they next face testing games against Samoa and Japan, so the first match will set the tone and tell us if there is any hope of a half-decent showing by England at the tournament.

It's odd to think that as recently as 2019, England put in their best performance since 2003 when they won the World Cup. It came when they beat New Zealand in the World Cup semi-final: they looked unbeatable, then flopped in the final against South Africa.

'The old order is fast fading, which is bad news for England'

But things have changed. England won only five games from 12 in 2022, so in December the head coach, Eddie Jones, got the boot... and at once things got even worse. This year, under Steve Borthwick, there have been six defeats in nine games – and some of the defeats have been corks. They include a record 10–53 loss to France at Twickenham and most recently they were beaten by Fiji for the first time.

That was also at Twickenham and in front of 25,000 empty seats, as it seems the faithful are losing their faith. Not only are England losing, they are losing in the most dreadful way. Their game plan is based on a mistrust of skill. They set out to win ugly: to be uncompromising and pragmatic masters of the boring victory, but they have succeeded only in being boring losers.

DAMP SPIRITS

It wasn't just the rain depressing England's George Ford in the World Cup warm-up against Fiji

That's why Fiji have moved ahead of England in the world rankings for the first time – they are now seventh to England's eighth. Note that Argentina are sixth, having beaten Australia in July. They also beat New Zealand back in 2020 and now have defeats of every top-tier nation on their CV. The old order is fast fading, which is bad news for England.

There is a strange law in sport that echoes the novels of PG Wodehouse: when it seems that things can get no worse, they always do. Just as Bertie Wooster is about to be exposed for stealing an 18th-century cow-creamer, he finds that he must also marry the dreadful Madeleine Bassett. And just as England were trying to turn round a disastrous season, their captain Owen Farrell was given a red card against Wales for shoulder-charging an opponent in the head. The card was rescinded in a fine Wodehousian twist – and then reinstated. Things could get no worse, until they did. Billy Vunipola was sent off for a similar offence against Ireland.

As a result, two of England's key players will miss this vital match against Argentina. If this was a Wodehouse novel, Jeeves would step in and fix everything, but Borthwick lacks the Jeeves touch.

Argentina are formidable, with a powerhouse pack and potentially thrilling backs. And they don't lack experience, as ten squad members are in their third World Cup and two are in their fourth, including Agustín Creevy, who has more than 100 caps.

Borthwick carries on with the air of a kind-hearted bear trying to puzzle out why bad things happen in the world. "This isn't the result that we wanted," he explained helpfully after the Fiji game. "This is a group of very talented players who we are sure will play exceptionally well against Argentina."

WELL, SOME OF the great classic dishes came together because there was nothing else in the larder. Perhaps that'll happen for England, with Marcus Smith and George Ford coming together in some new combination that will unlock the Argentinian defence and restore a long-missing sense of certainty.

This opening game will be a collector's item, both for followers of England rugby and for connoisseurs of sporting disaster. There is scope for rich comedy here, but it's also a time when heroes can emerge. They might even be English.

Love at first fight

The course of true love never did run smooth – and that couldn't be truer in new darkly comic Sky Original drama The Lovers

There's no denying Sky is leading the way when it comes to exciting British TV projects – and its latest offering, The Lovers, looks set to be another fan favourite.

Starring Roisin Gallagher (The Dry, The Fall) as Janet and Johnny Flynn (Beast, Emma) as Seamus, this sexy and darkly funny love story is a refreshing take on the 'when worlds collide' narrative, with Belfast providing the romantic backdrop to the action.

Indeed, Janet is a far cry from your usual heroine. She's a foul-mouthed, hilarious supermarket worker who doesn't seem to care about very much at all. Instead, she drives her long-suffering boss and colleagues to despair and sees very little reason in living – quite the opposite to handsome, self-centred political broadcaster Seamus. On the surface, Seamus's life looks pretty much perfect. He lives in London with his celebrity girlfriend and has just been given a new show to present, filming in Belfast...

It's here that Seamus unexpectedly drops into Janet's world (literally over her garden wall) and, given they're from two completely different worlds, it's little wonder the pair immediately clash – and yet they also find themselves inextricably drawn to each other.

Of course, with much standing in their way, including opposing values and backgrounds, not to mention Seamus's girlfriend and a dark secret Janet is harbouring from her past, can these two overcome everything that divides them to find happiness?

Packed full of laugh-out-loud moments that'll have you thinking, "I can't believe they just said that," The Lovers is the ultimate portrayal of when something that seems to be so utterly wrong, could in fact be so utterly right.

IT'S LOVE ISLAND FOR CRINKLIES!

TV's love affair with dating programmes shows no sign of cooling off

BACK IN 2011, pop singer Katy Perry was at the peak of her powers, travelling the globe to perform to thousands, her gargantuan efforts caught on camera for an access-all-areas documentary. At the same time, she was splitting up from her then husband Russell Brand. As I watched her wiping away her tears seconds before stepping out on stage, I wondered which was the more defining experience: having her heart broken or being a superstar?

I was similarly intrigued watching a preview of ITV1's My Mum, Your Dad, the latest addition to the full-to-bursting genre of television dating shows, in which a bunch of middle-aged singletons are sent off by their grown-up children to an elegant English country pile to share some on-tap Krug and hopefully find romance under humungous amounts of wisteria. Yes, it's Love Island for crinklies, with Davina McCall stepping in to host and the neat twist that those same offspring are secretly watching their parent's every move (and moves) from a nearby barn.

'There's no more heart-warming tale than boy meets girl'

This is just the latest in a seemingly inexhaustible supply of on-tap reality romance, whether it be farmers wanting wives, celebs going dating or Netflix's Sexy Beasts, which sees daters don animal prosthetic disguises, naturally. We've come a long way from Cilla Black asking "our Graham" to give us the lowdown.

With so many variations on a theme, three questions come to mind: why make these shows; why do we watch them; and what possesses people to take part?

The first is easy to answer: for producers looking for an attractive format, they're dead cheap and make for reliable ratings winners. The second is also pretty simple – it beats getting up of an evening to twitch the curtain and see if George at Number 42 has made it home in good time because we all heard what happened last time he stayed out. Also, we're all suckers for a good love story, and there's no more timeless, heart-warming tale than boy meets girl (or boy – this is 2023, after all), boy meets another girl, first girl's parents appear to tell her how proud they are, somebody writes to Ofcom, and everybody gets a contract with PrettyLittleThing.

LOVE STORIES

The good news is that My Mum, Your Dad has real heart. Compared with the frighteningly confident 20-somethings of Love Island and its like, the participants come with their own hinterlands and share a mature understanding of what knocks life can bring – what McCall labels "baggage".

On one couple's first date, the woman is soon in tears as she hears her suitor's story. There's no cash reward for playing the system here – the only prize is love, apparently – and, mercifully, the cameras don't go into the bedrooms, which must come as a relief to their children watching from behind cushions up the road.

THE QUESTION REMAINS, though: why take part in them? McCall says she was inspired to host the show by the sheer number of her single friends looking for love in middle age – and for sure, the prospect of spending a fortnight in a beautiful country retreat, glugging free bubbly doesn't sound exactly unattractive.

But the price of this is baring your soul, not just to strangers in a garden, but to all those millions looking on. Lee McMurray, the commissioning editor of Channel 4's Married at First Sight, said recently, "It's never been harder to find love... these shows offer hope and some sort of guidance and advice."

But aren't the travails of early love, in all their peril and wonder, exposing enough, without the additional aspect of cameras and microphones poking into every emotional nook and cranny? Or is the experience of being so intimately filmed the defining one, with the romantic experience almost incidental?

Finally, is there anybody who can truthfully say their relationship benefited from being televised? I guess we could ask Katy Perry...

My Mum, Your Dad is Monday to Friday at 9.00pm on ITV1. See feature, page 146

Wilderness Episode 1 available from Friday

Back in 2018, her turn in The Cry (Netflix) showed us Jenna Coleman is skilled at playing the deceptively nice half of a toxic relationship – she's in similar territory here with an implausible but juicy dramatisation of BE Jones's novel. Liv (Coleman) is in a gilded cage, away from home in New York, faithfully supporting the glittering career of her husband Will (Oliver Jackson-Cohen). We know from a flashforward that they'll end up on a southern road trip with sinister overtones... a lot of the set-up is hackneyed wronged-wife stuff, but Coleman holds this potboiler together as something dark and fun starts to loom. JACK SEALE

Things are looking up for Sheila (Rose Byrne), with her aerobics business back at the forefront of her mind and grand plans brewing to expand it. But while her efforts to recruit more fitness instructors are initially positive – and lead to a funny montage set in roller rinks and strip clubs – we know that a major crisis is never far away. The fact that Sheila, the husband she cheated on and the man she cheated on him with are all pinballing emotional wrecks sets us up for a satisfyingly undignified climax to season three. JS

The Morning Show Season 3 eps 1 and 2 available Wed

This glossy drama initially centred on sexual harassment and other workplace aggressions within a US TV network and its flagship news shows, but over the first two seasons that narrative ran its course. So as season three begins, it's looking for a new direction. Enter Jon Hamm as a billionaire who wants to buy the company, and wants to take star presenter Alex (Jennifer Aniston) on a trip to space. As this silly diversion changes Alex's fractious friendship with young-gun journo Bradley (Reese Witherspoon), the show sets up a new network of secrets and gossip, but in the comeback double bill it's hard to know what point it's making. JS

The Changeling

Episode 4 available Friday

What started out as a relationship drama with blips of something strange is now a paranoid wild goose chase. If you can adjust to a world where nothing is as it seems and everyone's in pain, however, it's a well-mounted and strongly acted yarn. Grieving, desperate Apollo (Lakeith Stanfield, above) sells a book to an oddball nerd named William Wheeler – played with such relish by Future Islands lead singer Samuel T Herring that a switch to full-time acting is surely on the cards. The pair of them go deep into murky waters. JS

SERIES FINALE

It ploughs its own wordy, thoughtful, eccentric path, but this sci-fi drama knows how to deliver a finale – and in a show suffused with existential angst that deals with a different era in each season, what that means as the second run concludes is that a lot of people die, usually in heroic and surprising ways. The Empire, led by Lee Pace (above) as the increasingly despotic Brother Day, is in the process of crushing any prospect of rebellion – so where's Hari (a comfortably authoritative Jared Harris)? He's always out there somewhere... JS

FULL BOX SET

The conspiracy theory industry in the US feels much more loaded and pernicious now than when The X-Files debuted 30 years ago. These days, it's all talk of stolen elections and secret cabals of child abusers. But oh, for simpler times when all that preoccupied fringe FBI agent Fox Mulder (David Duchovny) was the threat of an alien invasion being hushed up by shadowy forces in the government. He believed wholeheartedly the truth was out there, despite partner and sceptic Dana Scully (Gillian Anderson) doing her best to debunk his outré ideology. The rest is the stuff of cult TV legend. DAVID BROWN

Only Murders in the Building

Series 3 ep 7 available Tuesday

Charles has quit Death Rattle Dazzle and his replacement is revealed here to be Matthew Broderick, who plays a nails-down-a-chalkboard version of himself. Rather than jump in and rehearse, he questions every stage direction and facet of his character, to the extent that producer Oliver is left tearing out what hair he has left. "Ferris Bueller may have a day off, Matthew Broderick does not," says the overly earnest star. And so convincing is he that you have to wonder whether casting directors will now run screaming whenever his name is mentioned. DB

MUSIC

Lang Lang Plays Disney

Available Friday

Like a sort of one-off, child-friendly Prom, this concert film sees world-class pianist Lang Lang deviate from the classical repertoire for which he's rightly celebrated and play a selection of popular Disney tunes instead – but with a full orchestra, in classical style, for one night only at the Royal Albert Hall. It might not be making full use of the maestro's immense musical talents, but that hardly matters. Sparkly, romantic magic is the aim – so if you're not sure about watching it right now, maybe add it to your watchlist and save it to enjoy with the family at Christmas. JS

SPORT DOCUMENTARY

Welcome to Wrexham Series 2 ep 1 available Wednesday

A genuinely unusual and uplifting sporting fairy tale continues: series two of an imaginative, funny documentary follows a second season of soccer-club ownership for Hollywood stars Ryan Reynolds and Rob McElhenney. Their surprise purchase of Wrexham AFC, with the long-term aim of turning a benighted non-league club into a Premier League behemoth, faltered slightly in the 2021/22 season when the newly rich Wrexham failed to gain promotion to League Two. Can they do it this time? That you probably know the answer doesn't matter, since the show remains as focused on the local community – which is seen directly feeling the positive knock-on effects of football success – as it is on football itself. You'll be roaring Wrexham on. JACK SEALE

The slow-witted slackers return after nearly 30 years with a familiar predicament and seemingly impossible task – to write a song that unites the universe and stops the cosmos from collapsing. Bill (Alex Winter), Ted (Keanu Reeves) and their chips-off-the-old-block teen daughters race against time (and across it), gathering historical figures to help create music most excellent. Director Dean Parisot (Galaxy Quest) half-heartedly rehashes the plots of the first two films for a threequel that is sadly underwhelming.

The Little Things ★★★ 15

Available 6 September

This 1990s-set serial-killer drama stars Denzel Washington (father of Tenet's John David) as a former LA detective haunted by a past case. He returns to the city to assist hotshot fellow cop Rami Malek in the pursuit of a killer who is targeting young women. Washington brings weight to his weary character, while Malek and Jared Leto, as a chief suspect, do some enjoyable showboating. John Lee Hancock's film may not be in the same league as the one it clearly aspires to be, David Fincher's Se7en, but it's slick, entertaining and builds to an explosive ending. ES

The unfolding mind-bending mystery may be hard to grasp on first viewing, but Nolan directs with typical showmanship and delivers some awesome set pieces. Washington makes for an intense and physically robust lead, while Robert Pattinson is foppishly charming as his ally and The Crown's Elizabeth Debicki convinces as Branagh's terrified wife. EMMA SIMMONDS

Set in London and shot during the Covid 19 pandemic, Locked Down sees a couple (Anne Hathaway and Chiwetel Ejiofor) rekindle their zest for life by embarking on a diamond heist. Hathaway plays the head of a marketing firm and Ejiofor a delivery driver, and when fate brings their work assignments together – she's in charge of an event that showcases a pricey diamond; he's due to transport the gem – they seize the opportunity to change their lives. Although the love story doesn't ring true, the film successfully captures the pandemic state of mind. ES

Now's the time to tackle your smartphone

At last, using your smartphone can be easy, simple and stress-free.

Find out how...

Modern mobile phones (smartphones as they're called) can do so much more than just make phone calls – from browsing the web wherever you are, to checking train times, to acting as a sat-nav...

And best of all they can make it so easy to keep in touch with family and friends – in so many ways, from sharing photos to making video calls.

But using them isn't always as easy as you'd want – and that's putting it mildly!

Do the manufacturers do it on purpose?

Sometimes it can seem like the manufacturers deliberately make them complicated – and how you do things is often hidden away. It might be easy once you know, but until you've been shown the easy way, it can drive you mad.

In fact only yesterday I was talking to someone whose Mum had got a new all-singing-all-dancing phone – but she couldn't work out how to answer a phone call on it! She's not daft – it's just that it's different from what she'd used before and the phone didn't come with a manual telling her what to do.

Whether you have similar problems or you're trying to do something slightly more advanced, the thing is, it can be easy to use them... once you know how. But until you've been shown, it can be like talking a different language.

That's why we've published these books: iPhones One Step at a Time, Android Phones One Step at a Time & Doro Smartphones One Step at a Time.

Plain English... and that's not all

They explain how to use the phone, in plain simple language with pictures of the screen showing you exactly where to tap or slide your fingers. No jargon!

What's covered?

I can't list it all here. But amongst other things, you'll discover:

- The basics of controlling it – swiping, tapping, opening apps & so on.
- How to use it as a sat-nav... in the car or even on foot.
- Send emails from your phone.
- Instant messaging and how to use it.
- Make it easier to read the screen.
- Most phones have a good camera so you can take photos: here's how to use it properly (and for videos).
- Browse the web at home or out & about.

Modern phones can be baffling – but there's a solution...

- Video phone calls – a great way to keep up with family who live a long way away.
- Share photos with friends around the world – quickly and easily.
- See updates, photos and video clips from friends & family – as soon as they "post" them.
- Choosing and downloading apps.
- And obviously, you can make phone calls and send and receive text messages. ("Voicemail" is covered, too).

All explained nice and simply. (Find out more in the free information pack – read on...)

What one reader had to say:

"Thanks for a fantastic smart phone book. Very pleasant staff as usual.

I think this book should be sold with every smart phone. I have learnt so much from it, the info you get with the phone is non-existent.

Smart phones are quite complex, and your books speak in plain English."

Only half the story

That's only half the story but I don't have room to explain here. We've put together full information on the books – who they're for, what they cover and so on.

What's more the books also come with a free gift – no room to explain that here either.

Don't buy now, do this instead

The books aren't available in the shops or on Amazon. Instead, send off now to get a completely free, no-obligation information pack. It'll explain what the books cover, who they're suitable for and so on – showing you just how it could help you.

The show that single-handedly catapulted flat caps back into fashion is celebrating its ten-year anniversary this week. Steven Knight's series was inspired by stories his parents told him about their upbringing in Small Heath, Birmingham, and follows the city's fearsome real-life Peaky Blinders gang after the First World War. Cillian Murphy as the inimitable Tommy Shelby fights, swears and smokes his way to ultimate power – with Paul Anderson, Sophie Rundle and the much-missed Helen McCrory superbly embodying the accent and the attitude. With the show regarded by many as one of the best of all time, Peaky Blinders' popularity and stylised aesthetic has inspired an immersive experience, a dance show and even a video game. LAURA RUTKOWSKI

Rory Alexander plays a nameless man who returns home after a spell in a psychiatric facility. Dunleavy (Mark Rylance, above) gives him work in his garage, but Alexander's character is increasingly haunted by the disappearance of his mother. A hyper-surreal film that revels in symbolism, it's an unusual, challenging and at times profound work that explores themes of birth, death and rebirth. JM

The Last Night of the Proms is back, with Sheku Kanneh-Mason and conductor Marin Alsop

MUSIC

Last Night of the Proms

7.00pm BBC2, 9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

Following the Queen's death last year, the celebratory finale to the previous eight weeks of glorious classical music performances was cancelled as a mark of respect. It was the first time since the Second World War that the final concert had not taken place at all. So, this year there's even more reason to put on your glad rags, wave your favourite flag and join in as the Prommers raise the roof of the Royal Albert Hall.

Conductor Marin Alsop, who has described it as "the ultimate showcase for great artistry and superb audiences", is joined by cellist

Sheku Kanneh-Mason and soprano Lise Davidsen (who were both due to perform last year) for an evening of arias, anthems and world premieres including pieces by Richard Strauss, Verdi and Coleridge-Taylor. As always, the evening concludes with a rousing rendition of patriotic (and occasionally controversial) favourites such as Land of Hope and Glory, Jerusalem and Auld Lang Syne. But it's also an event about the cheery audience: every joyous, whooping, bellowing one of them. JANE RACKHAM

Rugby World Cup

From 11.30am ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

With the curtains raised last night, the World Cup now takes flight with a quadruple header. Action begins in Saint-Étienne, where Italy face Namibia (k/o 12 noon), who only have four wins against top-tier rugby nations in their history – although two are against the Azzurri...

Attention then moves to Bordeaux, as top-ranked Ireland will want to build momentum against Romania (k/o 2.30pm), before there is a first glimpse of Australia against Georgia at the Stade de France (k/o 5pm) – and it's crunch time for England (k/o 8pm) in Marseille. Steve Borthwick's men arrive in France beleaguered by suspensions and poor form, so an opener against Argentina is an acid test that many fear they will fail.

England v Ukraine Polish city Wroclaw hosts a meeting between first and second in Group C of Euro 2024 qualifying, with England on a run of four straight wins after scoring 15 goals and conceding just one.

Ukraine have talent, though, such as captain Oleksandr Zinchenko of Arsenal, Chelsea winger Mykhailo Mudryk and Viktor Tsygankov on the other flank. So even if England's attack is fearsome, with Bukayo Saka fresh from a hat-trick last time out in white and Jude Bellingham taking life at Real Madrid in his stride, the Three Lions can expect a contest.

On Tuesday, England are in Glasgow for a friendly marking 150 years of rivalry with Scotland (k/o 7.45pm C4). MC

Marcus Wareing's Tales from a Kitchen Garden

5.50pm BBC2

Catch up via iPlayer

As well as throwing himself into cultivating the fruit and veg on his East Sussex smallholding, Marcus Wareing is keen to immerse himself in the local community. So, with a little trepidation, he enters the Framfield scarecrow-making competition.

"Every boy scout in the land is going to be laughing at me now," he winces as he ties knots and gets creative with some old clothes. He's clearly loving it, but you suspect he is happiest in his plot at sunrise doing jobs (with canine companion Esme's help) such as netting his crop of blueberries or picking figs for lunch. It all looks divine. JR

Gethin has an appointment with "a specialist" and Jan needs to be there with him. But we know this specialist is in Switzerland, and that Gethin will only be booking a one-way plane ticket. The problem with this scenario (aside from the obvious ethical and legal issues) is that Jan may end up missing the flight, with the tyres of her ambulance getting slashed by thugs while she's out on a call. Can she get to the airport in time?

Back at the ED, meanwhile, a loved-up Max and Donna are still acting as though they're in Grey's Anatomy, the shutting of an office door now regularly heralding the commencement of a steamy snog. DAVID BROWN

9.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer
Much-missed singer/songwriter Amy Winehouse would have turned 40 this week. This retrospective finds Jools Holland taking a fond look back at her short but stellar career, via her appearances on Later – from 2003 debut single Stronger Than Me to her stunning 2006 renditions of signature hits Rehab and Tears Dry on Their Own. We're also treated to her two Hootenanny turns, covering classics and duetting with Paul Weller.

On a beehive-heavy evening, it's followed by the film about her acoustic performance in an Irish fishing village, Winehouse's BBC Sessions and Reclaiming Amy, the documentary marking the tenth anniversary of her tragic death. MICHAEL HOGAN

SERIES FINALE
The stakes are agonisingly high as season two of the Danish crime drama concludes. Mario and his trafficked sister continue to try to escape, while copper Rolf and his colleagues (including suave French detective Charlotte Rampling) attempt to crack the trafficking ring.

Those parallel plotlines swerve into each other and the resulting collision threatens to leave lives in ruins. Not least Rolf's. Throughout this season he's grappled with doing the right thing to protect the girl that only he knows is his daughter. With the secret seemingly about to be revealed, his battle to find a compromise that hurts the fewest people is as gripping as any armed encounters. CERI THOMAS

Roddy and Margaret: the Affair that Shook the Royals

9.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5
There is a roll call of beautiful women who have had to jump out of the metaphorical palace windows to get their kicks – think Margaret Trudeau, Princess Diana, Cleopatra (allegedly). Princess Margaret was one such, as romantic as she was royal, and she found her most enduring passion in Roddy Llewellyn, 17 years younger and gardener to the society set who – clutch the pearls – wore an earring.

The relationship lasted eight years, and the biggest shock in this by-the-book exposé is the fact they managed to keep it out of the papers for the first three. That and how badly her husband Tony behaved. CAROLINE FROST

DRAMA
Bali 2002 10.25pm ITV1 Full series on ITVX

NEW SERIES

More than 200 people lost their lives when terrorists attacked the bustling tourist spot of Kuta on the island of Bali in Indonesia on 12 October 2002. That this Australian drama – already available to stream via ITVX – is a somewhat workmanlike affair only increases the horrific impact of what it depicts: simple scenes introduce us to some of the victims in the happily carefree hours before two packed bars are bombed, causing stomach-churning carnage that the programme does not flinch from showing plainly. Claudia Jessie of Bridgerton fame leads the cast as Polly, a Brit on honeymoon. As she's pitched into a bloody nightmare along with two young Australian women and some hunks from an Aussie soccer team, the light in the darkness comes from bystanders' reactions to the atrocity: when the local rescue and medical services struggle to cope, ordinary heroes start to step up.

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY
Dunkirk ★★★★★ 10.30pm-12.10am BBC1 12

WAR Director Christopher Nolan (Oppenheimer) takes on British wartime history with this tour-de-force treatment of the miracle of Dunkirk. His immersive epic plunges the viewer into a three-pronged story that unfolds on land, sea and air with the life-and-death ordeals of a soldier (Fionn Whitehead, above), a boat owner (Mark Rylance) and a Spitfire pilot (Tom Hardy). Dunkirk the event may have been "a colossal military disaster" according to Churchill, but Dunkirk the movie is a glorious triumph, with Hans Zimmer's magnificent score providing a pulsating heartbeat to the action. JEREMY ASPINALL (US/UK/Fr 2017, swearing, some violence, HD)

The Goonies ★★★ 2.15-4.25pm 5 Star 12

ADVENTURE Adapted from a story by Steven Spielberg, Richard Donner's good-natured romp sees a gang of kids go hunting for pirate treasure. The likeable young leads include Sean Astin, Martha Plimpton and Corey Feldman, and there's nice hamming from villains Anne Ramsey, Joe Pantoliano and Robert Davi. JOHN FERGUSON (US 1985, edited for language, violence, HD)

The Lady Vanishes ★★★★★ 2.45-4.20pm BBC2 U

THRILLER A close second behind The 39 Steps as the best film of Alfred Hitchcock's British period, this sublime movie sees Michael Redgrave and Margaret Lockwood search a Balkan express train for dotty Dame May Whitty. The performances are first class all round, notably Basil Radford and Naunton Wayne as the cricket-mad Charters and Caldicott. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1938, BW, HD)

Dr Seuss' Horton Hears a Who! ★★★★★ 3.05-4.50pm ITV2 U

ANIMATION Jim Carrey voices Horton the elephant, who discovers a speck-sized world on a grain of pollen, whose tiny inhabitants are threatened with destruction.

Before Horton can save them, though, he must convince his fellow jungle folk that the place even exists. The film is colourful, fast and fun, with a healthy dose of philosophy thrown in for good measure. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US 2008, HD)

55 Days at Peking ★★★★★ 5.55-9.00pm 5 Action PG

DRAMA This is an intelligent historical epic about the Boxer rebellion of 1900, when extremists besieged the compound of international diplomats. Switching between the wider political sphere and the personal dilemmas of the key players – Charlton Heston, David Niven, Ava Gardner – the movie offers a carefully balanced study of principle and courage. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1963, HD)

Skyscraper ★★★ 7.45-9.45pm C4 12

ACTION Die Hard meets The Towering Inferno in this harebrained but exciting Hong Kong-set disaster movie. Dwayne Johnson plays a security assessor who must fight to clear his name and save his family after the world's tallest building is set ablaze by terrorists. Johnson's star charisma shines through and the stunts are truly vertigo-inducing. ALAN JONES (US 2018, edited for language, violence, HD)

Red Rock West ★★★★★ 9.00-10.55pm Legend 15

THRILLER In this rarely screened, blackly comic tale, Nicolas Cage plays a hapless drifter who is mistaken for a hitman by JT Walsh and is sent to murder Walsh's wife, Lara Flynn Boyle. Things go from bad to worse when the real assassin (Dennis Hopper) turns up. The plot twists and turns deliciously, and John Dahl's direction strikes a deft balance between knowing humour and suspense. JF (US 1992, violence, swearing)

Sir Alex Ferguson: Never Give In ★★★★★ 11.15pm-1.25am C4 12

DOCUMENTARY During his 26 years at Manchester United, Alex Ferguson won 38 trophies, including five FA Cups and two Champions League titles. This lively biopic charts his sporting triumphs but also focuses on the brain haemorrhage he suffered in 2018. In light of his near-death experience, what Ferguson fears most is forgetting, rather than being forgotten. ANDREW COLLINS (UK 2021, swearing, HD)

47 Metres Down: Uncaged ★★★ 12.10-1.30am BBC1 15

HORROR This sequel to 2017's low-budget shark-cage thriller traps teenage scuba divers in a submerged Mayan city that inconveniently houses a blind prehistoric sea monster. Returning director Johannes Roberts handles the hyperventilating shocks and air-pocket moments with skill, but it's hard to empathise with the characters behind the goggles. AC (US/UK 2019, violence, HD)

Jamie Cooks the Mediterranean

Full series on C4 streaming

NEW SERIES

Jamie Oliver gets out of his kitchen for what some might call a busman's holiday, although he refers to it as a food research trip. He starts in Thessaloniki in northern Greece, where he indulges in his favourite pastime – plate watching. He loves to see what everyone's eating. He tries a fish carpaccio – "The Greek gods will be very happy with that!" – and a meze that celebrates the simplicity of its ingredients, before taking the ferry to the island of Skopelos where he hopes to eat a traditional meal of goat and monkfish, cooked over an open fire by a famous nomadic chef. If he can find him, that is.

Inspired by what he sees, Jamie does get the pots and pans out eventually, whipping up flat breads, chargrilled aubergine and a lemon tzatziki chicken dish.

His experience leaves him buzzing with new ideas so, while you may not be up for barbecuing a whole goat, he suggests enough recipes using typically Greek ingredients that are readily available in supermarkets. JANE RACKHAM

Countryfile

7.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

Life moves at a different – but not always slower – pace in the countryside. Take Lowther Castle, the Cumbrian pile that's been home to the Lowther family since the early 12th century. As Sammi Kinghorn discovers, they're re-landscaping to compensate for the ravages wrought by Victorian engineering and there are even more pressing land management issues at the RSPB's Leighton Moss.

Meanwhile, Katie, the teenage shepherd Kinghorn visited in May, has finished school for the year: it's no surprise how she's spending her summer. Away from Cumbria, Tom Heap investigates the beleaguered salmon farming industry and invites us to meet two pairs of One Man and His Dog finalists. JOHN AIZLEWOOD

TRAVEL

Amazing Hotels: Life beyond the Lobby

8.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

There's a different vibe to the series since Rob Rinder joined – more travelogue than how-luxury-hotels-are-run. Or maybe it's that he and Monica Galetti are visiting a different style of hotel.

At the luxurious Phinda Private Game Reserve in South Africa, the emphasis is less on cleaning bathrooms or changing sheets (although obviously the staff do that), and more on keeping guests safe while taking them on safari to see elephants, cheetah and even pangolin. Monica and Rob also hear about the reserve's incredible history and learn how it benefits local communities as well as conserving wildlife: much more interesting than housekeeping stats. JR

The Woman in the Wall

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

Thanks to last week's audacious rug-pull of a cliffhanger, Lorna Brady (Ruth Wilson) has been left doubting her own experiences, while viewers, too, are probably wondering whether she's the TV drama equivalent of an unreliable narrator.

As things currently stand, there is no woman bricked up in the wall and, instead, we have a howling empty space where a body ought to be. And things are set to get even more strange as episode four progresses, with Lorna in possession of a death certificate for the child taken from her and the authorities not having any record of there ever being a burial. So, sensing a cover-up, she decides to make a concerted effort to get to the truth. DAVID BROWN

Mortimer & Whitehouse: Gone Fishing

9.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

The pike fishing is a bit slow when Bob Mortimer and Paul Whitehouse go to Dumfries and Galloway so, while they wait patiently for a bite, they play silly games with Jelly Babies and pull "dead faces".

These moments of laughter interspersed with companionable silence lead Bob to reflect on how he has benefited from agreeing to go fishing with his pal Paul. "Always saying 'no' is the pathway to isolation... and ends by just watching TV in your bungalow," he concludes.

There's more laughter when they stay in a haunted house where an infra-red camera reveals a very scary sight. JR

DOCUMENTARY The Day the Queen Died: Minute by Minute

9.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5

Many of us had never known another monarch so, despite her age and failing health, the Queen's death remained an abstract idea – until Thursday 8 September 2022. Only two days before, dutiful to the end, she had received her 15th prime minister, Liz Truss, at Balmoral. That made what happened 48 hours later feel particularly surreal as reporters adopted an increasingly solemn tone and regular programmes stopped.

This documentary traces a timeline of that day, with first-hand accounts from royal insiders. Meanwhile, the rest of us watched an event unfold that, even 96 years in the preparation, still came as a shock. CAROLINE FROST

DOCUMENTARY 9/11: Where Were You?

9.00pm National Geographic Catch up via Disney+

National Geographic marked the tenth anniversary of the 11 September terrorist attacks with a moving documentary that pieced together the events of that day through first-person accounts. This follow-up revisits that idea, the difference being that much has changed since.

For a start, Osama Bin Laden and Ayman al-Zawahiri, the two masterminds behind 9/11, have been killed. Unsurprisingly, for the survivors, time has not made it easier to forgive. The 9/11 memorial in New York, however, has brought some comfort to Glen Klein, a retired NYPD detective who has finally fulfilled his dream of honouring fallen first responders. STEPHEN KELLY

DOCUMENTARY Waco Untold: the British Stories

10.40pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

The real story of the 1993 siege in Waco, Texas, is not really the actions of cult leader David Koresh, who died inside the Branch Davidians' HQ along with scores of his followers. The bigger questions surround the actions of the FBI and other US authorities as they surrounded the compound for nearly two months before launching a CS gas attack.

The second and concluding part of this documentary lets many of the decision-makers tell their side of the story. A sobering personal element is given by loved ones of the 23 Britons inside, who looked on helplessly and then later worked to counteract a narrative that cast the victims as mindless disciples. JACK SEALE

CAPITAL EVENT
Fiona Bruce hosts a London Roadshow in Crystal Palace Park

FACTUAL Antiques Roadshow

8.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

There are surprises on every Antiques Roadshow: usually it's a jaw-dropping valuation, an unusual object with an intriguing back story or a delightful response from its owner. But it's rare that a famous person makes a surprise appearance. The owner of a cartoon by Ralph Steadman was visibly thrilled when the artist himself unexpectedly turned up at the Roadshow in Crystal Palace Park, south-east London, earlier this year.

Among the other treasures brought in is a pocket sundial dating back to the 17th century, a trio of Chinese incense burners bought at a car boot sale and a handwritten letter from Emperor Haile Selassie.

Meanwhile, Fiona Bruce has a fun, James Bond-style challenge – to identify which of three everyday objects in fact cleverly disguise Second World War spy gadgets. JR See page 9

FILM OF THE DAY

Wallace & Gromit in The Curse of the Were-Rabbit ★★★★★

4.15-5.35pm BBC1 (starts 5.15pm in Wales) U

ADVENTURE This week sees the opening of a new exhibition celebrating Wallace & Gromit at London's Cartoon Museum. The claymation heroes made their feature-length debut in this witty comedy, in which inventor Wallace (voiced by Peter Sallis) and his faithful dog cash in on their town's upcoming giant vegetable competition by offering a humane pest-control service to rid the neighbourhood of unwanted rabbits. However, business is jeopardised when a monster begins destroying local gardens... SLOAN FREER (UK 2005, HD)

The Big Country ★★★★★

12.15-3.00pm BBC2 PG

WESTERN This truly epic western tells the tale of a greenhorn sent to the wide-open spaces – a role to which Gregory Peck is well-suited. The film never palls, despite its length, thanks to the combination of top director William Wyler and a superb cast that includes Jean Simmons, Charlton Heston and the Oscar-winning Burl Ives. TONY SLOMAN (US 1958, some violence, HD)

My Big Fat Greek Wedding 2 ★★★★★

1.55-3.45pm C5 12

ROMCOM Fourteen years after the original hit movie, writer/star Nia Vardalos revisits Toula Portokalos and her family. The jokes may feel familiar, but the film has plenty of heart and an infectious party atmosphere, as Toula strives to revitalise her marriage and keep her daughter from leaving home. My Big Fat Greek Wedding 3 is in cinemas this weekend. STELLA PAPAMICHAEL (US 2016, edited for content, HD)

Miss Congeniality ★★★★★

3.45-6.00pm C5 12

COMEDY Sandra Bullock is on great form in this energetic comedy set in the world of beauty pageants. Bullock's FBI agent is drafted in as one of the contestants after warnings of an attack on the Miss United States competition. Michael Caine is a joy as Bullock's makeover expert and the gags come thick and fast. LORIEN HAYNES (US 2000, edited for violence, language, HD)

Wonder ★★★★★

4.20-6.30pm C4 PG

DRAMA A bright ten-year-old boy with a congenital facial disfigurement confronts the challenge of settling into a new school in this thoughtful drama, based on RJ Palacio's acclaimed novel. Jacob Tremblay (Room) cuts a touching figure behind the prosthetics, and he's ably supported by Julia Roberts and Owen Wilson as his parents. TREVOR JOHNSTON (US 2017, edited for language, HD)

Bowfinger ★★★★★

5.25-7.25pm Comedy Central 12

COMEDY This spot-on satire on low-budget film-making stars Steve Martin as a director who can't get A-list action star Eddie Murphy for his new sci-fi project. So he follows the actor around, setting up various silly scenarios and then filming Murphy's shocked reactions. Martin is immensely engaging and Murphy offers sparkling support in dual roles. JASON CARO (US 1999, edited for content, HD)

The Iceman ★★★★★

9.00-11.10pm Film4 15

CRIME Michael Shannon stars in the true story of Richard Kuklinski, a contract killer who worked for the powerful Gambino family. But he led a double life, hiding his secret from his wife, played here by Winona Ryder. Shannon is terrific as a man so psychopathic he doesn't realise he's actually a monster. DAMON WISE (US 2012, violence, swearing, sex scenes, HD)

The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert ★★★★★

10.30pm-12.10am BBC1 (starts 11.15pm in N Ireland) 15

COMEDY DRAMA In this camp classic, two drag queens and a transgender woman travel across the Australian outback for a gig in Alice Springs. Terence Stamp is a revelation as the hard-drinking Bernadette, but he's matched all the way by co-stars Guy Pearce and Hugo Weaving. DAVID PARKINSON (Aus 1994, violence, swearing, sex scenes, HD)

The Evil Dead ★★★★★

12 midnight-1.25am BBC2 18

See review, page 75. (US 1981, violence, some swearing, HD)

Parasite ★★★★★

12 midnight-2.20am C4 15

DRAMA South Korea's Bong Joon-ho directs this sharp satire, which became the first non-English-language film to win the Oscar for best picture. The plot follows the down-at-heel Kims as they inveigle their way into a wealthy family's home, sparking a series of events that alternate between farce, wit and suspense. EMMA SIMMONDS (S Kor 2019, violence, swearing, HD)

Monday

THAT'S AMORE!

Love is the name of the game for the contestants (and their kids) of My Mum, Your Dad. Below: host Davina McCall

REALITY

My Mum, Your Dad

9.00pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

NEW SERIES

Davina McCall, host of this new dating series, emailed ITV begging to bring a "mid-life Love Island" to the screen. But, as it turns out, the channel was already developing its own version of a format that originally debuted in America.

Eight men and women – singletons in their 40s and 50s – are nominated by their children to stay in a Bridgerton-style house for two weeks to make connections and hopefully fall in love. What they don't realise is that their offspring are watching... and choosing whom they should spend time with.

What this isn't, though, is prurient (no cameras in the bedrooms!). Rather, it's a heart-warming watch with relatable stories of loss and heartbreak. For instance, watching Roger get back into the dating game a year after his wife's death will convert even the most hardened of cynics. And while, as in Love Island, everyone is stunning, this feels more genuine. No one is voted out, but there are a few bombshells. And rather than a cash pay-out, the prize is simply love. Continues nightly. LAURA RUTKOWSKI Smart TV: page 29; Davina McCall's view from the sofa: page 146

QUIZ

Mastermind

7.30pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

Another brain-teasing triple bill kicks off with Clive Myrie welcoming more clammy-palmed contenders into that familiar black leather chair. Their specialist subjects include tennis star Roger Federer, sitcom Gavin & Stacey and Sergio Leone's spaghetti westerns. It's followed by Victoria Coren Mitchell's fiendish test of logic and lateral thinking as the 19th series of Only Connect (8pm) reaches its knockout stages. What connects 7:36pm, 7:36pm, 7:52pm and 8:22pm? Tune in to find out! Finally, Amol Rajan puts Balliol College, Oxford and Imperial College London through their paces for a place in University Challenge's (8.30pm) second round. After all that quizzing, your little grey cells will be thoroughly exercised. MICHAEL HOGAN

INVESTIGATION

The Dark Side of Ballet Schools

8.00pm (8.30pm Wales) BBC1
Catch up via iPlayer

The latest Panorama report probes troubling claims of bullying and body shaming at two of the UK's leading ballet schools. Both institutions are elite establishments that only offer places to Britain's most promising young ballet dancers. It's a chance for these talented kids to pursue their dreams of a career on stage, but many have come forward to accuse the schools of placing them under intolerable pressure: they must remain thin, even while their bodies change during puberty. Reporter Mark Daly hears from former pupils who say they have developed eating disorders and mental health problems as a result, and are calling for change. PAUL WHITELAW

SOAP

Coronation Street

8.00pm ITV1
Catch up via ITVX

Roy's key function on the Street is to nurture any waif or stray who comes into his orbit. Over the years, the likes of Fiz, Becky, even Carla have received counselling Cropper-style. And tonight, he's ploughing his energies into the troubled Lauren, who's insisting that she can sort herself out, despite Roy wanting to contact social services to find accommodation for her.

Elsewhere, we have Tyrone taking on the traditional Corrie role of the indecisive guy who's at the mercy of no-nonsense women. He's told by his gran Evelyn that he needs to get in touch with Fiz and tell her about Cassie's relapse. And if he doesn't do the job, then she most definitely will. DAVID BROWN

POLITICS

Laura Kuenssberg: State of Chaos

9.00pm BBC2
Catch up via iPlayer

NEW SERIES

The BBC's former political editor fronts this series examining the whys and wherefores behind some of the most dramatic events in recent British history. The Conservative government has become notorious for its bouts of controversy and turmoil, from its handling of Brexit to the pandemic and other pressing issues. "I want to take viewers behind the scenes," says Kuenssberg, "to show them what really happened, and ask whether after all the craziness, politics will ever be the same again." Her report includes interviews with senior civil servants and Number 10 staffers who have never spoken publicly before. PW

The Inheritance

9.00pm Channel 5

Catch up via My 5

By my reckoning, there are three ways this decent domestic thriller can go. Option one is that dad Dennis (Larry Lamb) died of natural causes, though there aren't many thrills with that scenario. The second is that one of the siblings is responsible (this feels likelier as there's a family member currently acting in a highly suspicious manner). But, at the moment, we're being led to believe that an outside element is to blame, possibly Susan (Samantha Bond) but maybe Michael (Kevin Whately). The latter barely featured in last week's opening episode, though he gets a greater share of the screen time here after some interesting new evidence comes to light. DB

DOCUMENTARY

Body in the Suitcase: the Murder of Deborah Chong

9.00pm Crime + Investigation (Sky 156, Virgin 133) Catch up via Crime + Investigation Play

In 2021, Jemma Mitchell, from north London, was captured on CCTV with a seemingly empty suitcase. Yet, a few hours later, the police were intrigued as to why she was walking in the opposite direction, dragging the case with some difficulty. Or indeed, why a car, rented by Mitchell, was spotted in Devon, where the decapitated body of friend Deborah Chong was found. This two-part documentary recounts the sordid saga; some of its most unsettling moments are interviews with Mitchell's mother, who insists her daughter is innocent. STEPHEN KELLY

ASTRONOMY

The Sky at Night

9.30pm BBC4

Catch up via iPlayer

This month's episode brings to mind a Monty Pythonesque scene featuring a team of astronomers hunched around a table, trying to name their shiny new, very large telescope. "How about... the Very Large Telescope?" one of them cries. Genius!

Tonight the Sky at Night squad travel to the Chilean desert, where the lack of humidity has helped the VLT to unveil some paradigm-shiftingly cosmic images. Using both the visible and infrared wavelengths, this has led to the discovery of various exoplanets that previously remained cloaked in darkness. Hopefully the locals have come up with a better name for it than el Telescopio Muy Grande. GARY ROSE

SERIES FINALE

It would have been easy to devour this third series in one sitting – and I'm sure many did – but tonight's concluding episodes are worth savouring.

Jessie (Rose Matafeo) isn't speaking to best friend Kate (Emma Sidi) and things with Liam (Vigil's Lorne MacFadyen) are over. She's still rejecting calls from Tom (Nikesh Patel), who is on his way to see Clem (Constance Labbé). Is he really going to come clean to his fiancée?

The finale sees a medical emergency that, in fanciful fashion, brings everyone into one place (although more far-fetched is the photogenic, Art Deco hospital). This version of London, with its tinkly jazz bar music underscoring every scene, is one you ache to be in. And one we'll hopefully get the chance to see again. FRANCES TAYLOR TV PREVIEWS EDITOR

What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?

★★★★★ 11.15pm-1.25am BBC2

GOTHIC DRAMA This innovative chiller set the trend for ageing divas to revive their careers by playing maniacs – but no one beats Joan Crawford or Bette Davis in the snarl-and-shriek department. Here the former queens of Hollywood play actress sisters divided by age-old resentments, with Davis's grotesquely made-up former child star torturing her paralysed sister (Crawford). The on-screen fireworks between the two leads were reportedly fuelled by their real-life rivalry, as depicted in the TV series Feud: Bette and Joan, available now on Disney+. ALAN JONES (US 1962, violence, BW, HD)

Warlords of Atlantis

11.00am-12.50pm Legend PG

ADVENTURE In this decent period romp, Doug McClure and the rest of his ship's crew are transported to the underwater city of Atlantis after they remove a golden statue from the sea bed. The monstrous menagerie of sea beasts on display is as wobbly as the script and the performances, but that's all part of the film's cheesy charm. ADRIAN TURNER (UK 1978)

The Swimmer

★★★★★ 12.45-2.35pm Film4 PG

DRAMA Burt Lancaster stars here as a washed-up suburban man who decides to swim home via every pool in his neighbourhood. Based on a short story by the great writer John Cheever, the film is an object lesson in late-1960s alienation. Its trippier moments won't be to everyone's taste, but it does provide a beguiling snapshot of the times. AT (US 1968, HD)

CRIME A remake of the French film Anything for Her, this follows mild-mannered academic Russell Crowe as he attempts to break his wife (Elizabeth Banks) out of jail. What follows is an escape procedural, with director Paul Haggis offering a host of fascinating detail. However, the questionable innocence of Banks's character isn't nearly as well exploited as it could have been. ADAM SMITH (US 2010, violence, swearing)

Unforgiven

★★★★★ 9.00-11.40pm 5 Action 15

WESTERN The winner of four Oscars, Clint Eastwood's elegiac western is one of the finest films ever made in the genre. Eastwood gives an exemplary performance as world-weary William Munny, who's forced to strap on the six-shooters one last time in order to feed his children. The support playing from Morgan Freeman, Richard Harris and a villainous Gene Hackman is also top notch. DP (US 1992, violence, swearing, HD)

Naked

★★★★★ 11.30pm-2.10am Film4 18

DRAMA Mike Leigh's grim tale stars David Thewlis as a Mancunian misfit who turns up at his ex-girlfriend's London flat and proceeds to tell the naked truth about the city's uncaring society by lashing out unmercifully at everyone he meets. With its bravura mix of comedy, tragedy, violence and warmth, Leigh's uncompromising exposé is British film-making at its finest. ALAN JONES (UK 1993, violence, swearing, sex scenes, drug abuse, nudity, HD)

DOCUMENTARY

Living Next Door to Putin

8.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

We're used to Katya Adler as a sharp presence on news bulletins and podcasts, but here she has a wider brief. Travelling across Eastern Europe, she looks at how the war in Ukraine is affecting Russia's other neighbours.

There's not a politician in sight; Adler is more interested in plucky individuals doing their bit. A woman in Poland takes in refugees from Ukraine. A racing driver crowd-funds vehicles, then sends them to the war kitted out as ambulances. An ex-army sniper in Lithuania prepares to head to Ukraine with his kit, risking his life because, he says sadly, "We need to stop [the Russians] there. If we don't stop them, they'll destroy half the world."

We get a series of grass-roots snapshots that build into a bigger picture of the region and its traumas. The most moving sequence involves Asian migrants trying to cross the border into Poland from Belarus, Russia's ally having deliberately funnelled them there to stoke division in Poland. Lost on foot in a forest as night falls, hunted by Polish border police, they're pawns in a much bigger game. DAVID BUTCHER

The Yorkshire Vet

8.00pm Channel 5
Catch up via My5

There's a dramatic start to this week's edition, when David Melleney is called out to a dairy farm to help a cow that's struggling to give birth. The poor thing has a twisted uterus, and David suspects the calf may have died already. The bloody procedure that follows is not for the faint-hearted or squeamish.

Nor is the sight of what's inside shar pei-cross Murphy's mouth. He has a ping-pong ball-sized lump, which vet Julian Norton thinks may well be cancerous.

There's some welcome light relief, however, when the team are called upon to file down the teeth of Beyoncé, Blondie, Shakira and Whitney... they're alpacas, in case you're wondering. JANE RACKHAM

The Following Events Are Based on a Pack of Lies

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

While Rob's Jekyll-and-Hyde personality comes to the fore when he and Alice are alone for the first time in years, Cheryl hasn't been privy to the full force of his gaslighting and anger. Yet.

But she does have a gnawing suspicion that something isn't right, as Rob makes himself uncomfortably comfortable in her house. In the study commandeered as his own, he's not-so-subtly watching Fatal Attraction, as a white rabbit becomes part of his plan's next phase and his long con elongates further.

Meanwhile, Alice tries to track down his previous victims. But is she already too late? FRANCES TAYLOR

LAST EPISODE

Thanks to Bridgerton, lots of people want a Regency wedding, including the final couple in this series.

Ordain and Aaron have nothing in place for their big day, so the two wedding planner finalists are given £25k and three days to organise it all: venue, flowers, entertainment and "Wow!" factors. Apart from the improbability of finding an immediately available country mansion (most are booked up a year in advance), it's a big ask, so they decide to get help from some obliging former contestants.

There's the usual fake jeopardy, panic and head-in-hands moments, but the planners have learnt a lot and both deserve to win. JR

DOCUMENTARY

Stranger in My Family

9.00pm BBC3 Catch up via iPlayer

This remarkable, revelatory film was commissioned as the result of a winning pitch at Sheffield DocFest. Luke Davies grew up in a white working-class family in Rochdale but always felt like an outsider. Persistent questions about his appearance eventually inspired him to take a DNA test. The result revealed that his dad is not his biological father and Luke is of a mixed ethnic background.

To discover who he really is, Luke embarks on a search for a Portuguese barman called Carlos, with whom his mother had a holiday romance in the 1990s. On a trip to Albufeira, can he identify the bar Carlos worked in 30 years ago, let alone find him? What unfolds is a life-affirming story of secrets, healing and acceptance. MICHAEL HOGAN

So Help Me Todd

9.00pm Alibi

Catch up via Now

So far, this series has been all about Todd cleaning up his act, smartening his clothes and not embarrassing Margaret at the legal practice where they work. But now it's Mum's turn to get the same treatment in reverse, with Margaret seen taking on the case of Todd's disreputable childhood friend Brian.

This involves a journey way out of her comfort zone – all the way to a male strip club and then a trailer park. The look of anguish on the lawyer's face suggests she wants to burn her designer trouser suits as soon as she gets home out of fear that they've been infected. This discomfort does, however, result in delightful viewing for us. DAVID BROWN

DOCUMENTARY

Benjamin, Joshua and the Crown Shyness

10.00pm BBC4 Catch up: iPlayer

This Italian Storyville film won't be for everyone. It's an up-close, stylised portrait of 20-year-old Milanese twins Benji and Josh. Feisty and loud, the brothers share the regular frustrations of angry young men, but they also have a learning disability, so the way they fight, drink, flirt, play music and face up to adulthood comes with an edge.

In one scene, Josh takes a driving lesson while Benji heckles from the back seat; in another, their father chides Josh for ordering sex toys online. Some of this feels oddly staged (four writers are credited, despite there being no narration...) but stick with it and there are magical moments. DBu

Catch up via C4 streaming

Programmes about flogging luxury homes are ten-a-penny, but what makes this one more interesting is that it shares the nuts and bolts of the marketing process and doesn't give too much airtime to meaningless "I really want this" statements.

This week the wannabe-agents are split into teams to make videos of two London properties (one worth £3m, the other £5.5m) aimed at enticing viewings. "I don't want them done in a cheesy, old-fashioned way", declares boss PK. (Someone still strips off to demonstrate the jacuzzi.) It's hard to decide which team does best (both have obvious failings), so hearing PK's thought process, comments and advice is enlightening. JR

DEEP WATER

People being rescued from their flooded homes in Tewkesbury

DOCUMENTARY

The Great Flood of '07

9.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5

The summer of 2007 was the wettest in Britain since records began. And where excessive rain comes, floods are sure to follow. Areas from Northern Ireland to South Wales were drenched in June. In July, the heavens opened from Ayrshire to Bedfordshire. Over a dozen people and countless livestock died, while in some areas, a year's crops perished.

As the comforting sight of fire brigade personnel guiding people to safety in boats along rivers that were once streets became commonplace, the rescue effort was the most extensive seen in peacetime: according to official government figures, the economic cost was £3.2 billion. The scale of the disaster was mind-boggling, but the often-moving stories told here are a reminder that, as with all great events, both the costs and the heroism touched individuals, whose lives would be changed forever.

DAY

Lion ★★★★★ 9.00-11.20pm Film4 PG

DRAMA Based on the memoir A Long Way Home by Saroo Brierley, Garth Davis's affecting true-story drama unfolds across two time periods. The wonderful Sunny Pawar plays five-year-old Saroo, who is separated from his brother, falls asleep on a train and wakes up in Calcutta with no money and no means of identification. Twenty-five years on, having been adopted from an orphanage by an Australian couple (Nicole Kidman and David Wenham), the grown-up Saroo (now played by Dev Patel, above) resolves to find his family. Davis's new film Foe stars Saoirse Ronan and is released in cinemas next month. DAMON WISE (UK/Aus/US 2016, HD)

The Legend of the Lone Ranger

11.00am-12.50pm Legend 12

WESTERN There's plenty of action to be had, but this return for the noble masked avenger suffers from the casting of bland Clinton Spilsbury (in his only feature) in the central role. Despite that, this origins story is not without a certain grandeur, and director William A. Fraker conjures some dazzling imagery and scenic splendour. TONY SLOMAN (US 1981, may be edited for content)

Kings Go Forth

3.10-5.25pm
Talking Pictures TV PG

WAR This blend of wartime adventure and racial drama is new to Talking Pictures TV this week. Frank Sinatra and Tony Curtis star as soldiers in France whose friendship is tested when Sinatra falls for Natalie Wood, a woman of mixed ethnic heritage who is wary of American prejudice. The film's plot contrivances and its own self-importance weigh a little too heavily on it. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1958, BW)

A Call to Spy ★★★★★
4.30-7.10pm Great Action 12

WAR This is a heartfelt tribute to the women who were crucial to the setting up of through at the end to give it a cool, satisfying pay-off. DW (US 2010, violence, nudity)

The Evil Dead

10.00-11.25pm BBC3 18

HORROR Director Sam Raimi burst onto the horror scene with this crude cult favourite. Short on story but long on gore and innovative camerawork, it sees an evil force attempt to destroy five friends in a backwoods cabin when they discover the Sumerian Book of the Dead. Sit back and watch the body parts and viscera fly in this essential 1980s horror. AJ (US 1981, violence, some swearing)

Casino Royale

10.45pm-1.00am ITV1
(starts 11.15pm in Border Scotland, Wales; not STV) PG

SPY SPOOF This unwieldy caper is nominally based on Ian Fleming's first 007 novel, but is not really counted as a James Bond film. It's played as a satire in which David Niven's retired Bond recruits a group of 007 agents to avenge the death of "M" (John Huston). The surfeit of directors (five!) gives it a disjointed air, but it's still a fun watch. ANDREW COLLINS (UK 1967, violence, HD)

The Two Faces of January

11.45pm-1.15am BBC2 12

THRILLER Based on Patricia Highsmith's 1964 novel, this intelligent and well-crafted film stars Viggo Mortensen as an American conman who arrives in Athens with his wife (Kirsten Dunst). After accidentally killing the private detective on his tail, Mortensen persuades scam-artist tour guide Oscar Isaac to help cover up the crime. AJ (Fr/UK/US/Lux 2013, swearing, some violence, HD)

Celebrity Race across the World 9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

NEW SERIES

Spending four weeks travelling 10,000km on a budget without taking a plane or having a smartphone is daunting. But doing it with a parent or sibling is surely madness. But that's what four celebrities – Billy Monger, Harry Judd, Alex Beresford and Melanie Blatt – are attempting as they race from Marrakesh in Morocco to Tromsø in Norway via several European checkpoints.

It only takes a few minutes for Billy's sister Bonny to reveal he's a mummy's boy, and it's soon obvious that Melanie prefers taxis to buses.

There are no massive fallings-out yet, but you can see the potential for frustration when, say, an elderly mum's slow pace makes you miss the last bus or your dad fancies going sightseeing rather than getting a move on. Then again, how lovely is it that Harry and Alex want to spend time with their mum Emma and dad Noel respectively?

This celeb version of the reality show is instantly addictive because the contestants are engaging and the relationship dynamics are fascinating. But it's anyone's guess who will win. JANE RACKHAM See feature: page 16

Norfolk and Suffolk: Country and Coast

8.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5

Bill Nighy is clearly having a whale of a time narrating this scenic travelogue, as he's positively cock-a-hoop while "spending a day in the lives of those fortunate enough to live, work and play" in Norfolk and Suffolk. It's a sweet gig for an actor of his stature, but you could never accuse the man of phoning it in.

This week's sojourn involves the world's longest chalk reef, which attracts a biodiverse abundance of sea life, plus an admirably eco-friendly steam train and a lifeboat that saved lives at Dunkirk. Proud Norfolk resident Alan Partridge must be spitting feathers, as this is his natural broadcasting habitat. Face facts, Alan, national treasure Nighy is a bigger draw. PAUL WHITELAW

DOCUMENTARY

Voyage to Mars: the Longest Goodbye

8.30pm BBC4 Catch up via iPlayer

What would the human toll of travelling to Mars be? For those of us who get twitchy on a long-haul flight, the idea of a three-year trip across space seems close to nightmarish – a nightmare any number of sci-fi films have helped flesh out.

This documentary meets the Nasa psychologists looking for the types who, if a Mars mission ever happens, might cope best and not end up, as in Elton John's Rocket Man, "burning out his fuse". One astronaut who spent six months on the International Space Station in 2007 recalls how she and her young son, who was ten at the time, tried to stay connected through the ether, via technology as glitchy as any family Zoom call.

Jackie (Laura Checkley) routinely employs sarcasm as her shield, but a chink in that armour is arriving on C Wing in the form of Jesse Doyle (Kieran Urquhart), a former foster child of hers who's currently doing time. He wants to be transferred to an open prison and needs Jackie to lie in a statement to get him there.

What follows is a powerful story, executed well by all, but especially Urquhart, who is now definitely on my One to Watch list after a few recent impressive performances, first in The Syndicate, then in The North Water and now here. This, by the way, is the penultimate episode of the current series; the finale can be seen tomorrow at 9pm.

Plenty of series have tried to bring the politics of Ancient Rome to life, but this Anglo-Italian production takes a better stab at it than most, treading a path between dry character drama and debauched romp.

Season two begins in 19 BC, with Gaius (Matthew McNulty) and the scheming star of the show, his wife Livia (Kasia Smutniak), returning to the city to find there's a bread shortage, threatening the delicate equilibrium that allows the senators to live in luxury while the masses just get by. Before the plotting behind that is resolved, however, Livia gets arrested in a brothel and her son Drusus (Ewan Horrocks) causes ructions thanks to his sassy German girlfriend... JACK SEALE

SERIES FINALE
A retired police officer dies after her houseboat goes up in flames, prompting Annika (Nicola Walker) to share her thoughts on Prometheus and other Greek legends, but for much of this episode, the arson case seems almost secondary to the detective's messy personal life. Her dad is staying with her while he sorts out his marital issues, lover Jake is keen to move in, and daughter Morgan is beginning to suspect who her father might be.

Prometheus, Annika says, created a smokescreen in order to steal fire from the gods. Here, too, the plot provides a smokescreen to obscure a shocking discovery that will knock you sideways. JR

HISTORY

Egypt's Unexplained Files

10.00pm Sky History

Catch up via Now
Propelled by lightly bombastic music and a breathless voiceover, this series explores how modern technology is helping to give archaeologists fresh insights into the ancient Egyptians and their beliefs and abilities.

Take the Pyramids. Today, the plateau where they sit is far from the Nile, but satellite photography reveals that there was once a harbour at Giza, so shipping the stone blocks to the site was a lot easier than previously thought. We also follow scientists trying to establish what Cleopatra really looked like (hint: she was no Elizabeth Taylor), and learn why Akhenaten's utopian vision was probably anything but. GILL CRAWFORD

So eclectic is Idris Elba's early TV CV that you could fill an entire edition of Before They Were Famous with its highlights. There was the regular role on the now forgotten Channel 5 soap Family Affairs, as well as a guest appearance as a pizza delivery guy on the Gerry Anderson sci-fi/cop show hybrid Space Precinct. And the actor also turns up here playing boxer Charlie in a two-part case from the second series of Silent Witness, dating back to 1997.

It's a reminder, too, of just how long the forensics drama has been around, with this mystery being investigated by original star Amanda Burton (aka Sam Ryan), who reflects on her experiences at 10pm. DBR

CRAFT

The Repair Shop

8.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

A faded football programme signed by the greatest player ever. That's the headline item on our latest visit to the barn of miracles. Former West Ham goalkeeper Peter Grotier played in a friendly match against the Brazilian team Santos in New York shortly after Brazil lifted the 1970 World Cup. Grotier's two heroes were both on the pitch alongside him: team-mate Bobby Moore and, on the opposition side, the mighty Pelé. Can paper conservator Angelina Bakalarou salvage the fragile programme that Pelé signed for Grotier after the full-time whistle?

Also tonight: toy restorers Julie Tatchell and Amanda Middleditch get a much-loved teddy bear fighting fit again; luthier Julian Wallis works wonders with a broken guitar that helped a teenager through lockdown; and silversmith Brenton West and the busy Middleditch team up to work on a brave army veteran's medal. MICHAEL HOGAN

THRILLER Did the Americans really land on the Moon, or did they fake it in a TV studio? That's the premise of this ingenious thriller, which finds three men (including James Brolin, above) bound for Mars. After a technical hitch on the launchpad, the astronauts are forced to fake the mission to save face. However, when their space capsule (which went without them) burns up on re-entry, there remains the problem of three embarrassingly alive astronauts. Directed by Peter Hyams with real flair, this enjoyable film builds to a gripping finale. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1978, edited for violence, language)

ACTION The secret of a good disaster movie is to ensure the protagonists hardly have a chance to draw breath between crises. That's the case here, as a plane crashes on an island only for the survivors to learn it is the site for an imminent atomic test. Director Guy Green sustains the suspense well, helped by a solid ensemble cast. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1959, BW)

Tribute to a Bad Man ★★★★★

PG

WESTERN This fine MGM film has a genuine feel for life on the frontier and is dominated by a larger-than-life turn from James Cagney as a ruthless cattle baron. His unstable relationship with former dancehall girl Irene Papas forms the tough centre of the movie, which also features Lee Van Cleef and Royal Dano among the cast. TONY SLOMAN (US 1956)

PG

WAR Robert Aldrich directs this gritty tale of a cowardly US Army captain (Eddie Albert) endangering the lives of his men during the Battle of the Bulge. Jack Palance is excellent as the heroic platoon leader, as is Lee Marvin as the colonel presiding over the whole affair. TOM HUTCHINSON (US 1956, violence, BW)

Bulldog Drummond in Africa ★★★★★

Talking Pictures TV

U

MYSTERY It's a first showing on Talking Pictures TV for this adventure, with John Howard as HC "Sapper" McNeile's troubleshooting hero. Sadly, it's a pretty shoddy affair, with some unconvincing sets standing in for criminal J Carol Naish's jungle lair. Heather Angel seems to be along for the ride only so that she can be imperilled by various villains. DP (US 1938, BW)

ACTION COMEDY This hit-and-miss comedy stars Kevin James (Zookeeper) as a jaded biology teacher who moonlights as a mixed martial arts fighter to save his school's music department from closure. James's likeable personality and quick wit help the film through its stuttering storyline and predictable plot twists. TERRY STAUNTON (US 2012, may be edited for content)

COMEDY Robert De Niro's uptight ex-CIA man continues to lock horns with his future son-in-law Ben Stiller in this sequel to Meet the Parents. This time, Stiller takes his fiancée (Teri Polo) and her parents (De Niro and Blythe Danner) to Florida to meet his own hippyish folks (Barbra Streisand and Dustin Hoffman). The film is worth watching for the cast alone. ANDREW COLLINS (US 2004, some swearing, HD)

DRAMA Raunchier than 2015's Fifty Shades of Grey, this continuation of the story sees Jamie Dornan and Dakota Johnson reprising their roles as controlling billionaire Christian Grey and besotted ingénue Anastasia. This time, creepy Christian's baggage not only includes personal demons, but also a deranged ex (Bella Heathcote). Fifty Shades Freed is showing tomorrow. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US 2017, sex scenes, nudity)

DRAMA In this absorbing tale of rehabilitation, an antisocial prisoner in a Nevada correctional facility joins a programme to break in wild mustangs for auction. Matthias Schoenaerts is on good form as the convict, but the trump card is Bruce Dern as the marvellously ornery head of the horse-wrangling project. TREVOR JOHNSTON (Fr/US/UK/Bel/Jap 2019, violence, swearing, drug abuse, HD)

The Royle Family: Down the Back of the Sofa

9.00pm Gold Catch up via Now

I guess this could be said of anyone no longer with us who was maybe close or especially creative or kind. But the sight of Caroline Aherne giggling away about the making of The Royle Family in an archive interview doesn't half leave you feeling upset and angry that she's gone.

She and co-creator Craig Cash really did something remarkable with that show, the characters they crafted being neglectful but somehow lovable – bullying and yet caring. It's like she and Cash were peering in at working-class front rooms across the north west, observing the faults and failures, while also finding dignity and loyalty.

This being the Royles' silver jubilee, Gold has asked current comedians including Rosie Jones and Diane Morgan to talk about Aherne's talents. "A genius" is the majority verdict, with Rachel Fairburn also expressing sadness that we never got to witness Denise Royle in middle age. What might she be up to in 2023? My prediction would be vaping and scrolling through Instagram with Gogglebox on in the background. DAVID BROWN

Some Walford residents must just be addicted to weddings, as there can be no other explanation for characters continuing to walk down the aisle when all the empirical evidence points to EastEnders unions ending in divorce, disaster or death.

Take Kat and Phil – they have six failed marriages between them (she and Alfie messed it up twice, in case you're counting) and yet they're announcing here that they plan to get spliced next week. No doubt by Christmas, Kat's mascara will have streaked so far down her cheeks that she could be auditioning for a Kiss tribute band, while a raging Phil stands surrounded by wrecked decorations, his face as red as a Santa suit. DB

Sort Your Life Out with Stacey Solomon

8.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

You might think that living in a five-bedroom farmhouse with a big kitchen, utility room and office would mean you had masses of storage space to keep everything tidied away. It seems not.

Andy and Lianne's Shropshire home is overflowing. "Everyone has a junk drawer... but it shouldn't spread all over the house," exclaims Stacey Solomon when she sees it. Lianne's reluctance to throw away clothes or some of their 1,000 mugs ("we drink a lot of tea" is the excuse) almost defeats her and cleaning queen Mrs Hinch.

As much a therapy session as a decluttering one, there are tears of gratitude and hugs all round when it's over. JANE RACKHAM

The Hidden World of Hospitality with Tom Kerridge

8.00pm BBC2
Catch up via iPlayer

With 12 hospitality businesses forced to close their doors every day, taking a restaurant concept and expanding it into a chain is a massive risk. "You need a formula that works," explains Tom Kerridge, who is in the process of opening a second branch of his successful Butcher's Tap and Grill.

You also need to be on top of the maths, as the owners of a West African/Caribbean fusion restaurant in Windsor discover. They must be aware of profit margins, percentages and precise costing but even then, as popular vegan restaurant Stem and Glory will attest, expansion doesn't always work. JR

Classic Movies: the Story of Brighton Rock

8.00pm Sky Arts Catch up via Now

It's sun, sea and sadistic killers for critic Ian Nathan this week, as he examines gangster classic Brighton Rock. The film was controversial for its violence and bleak undercurrents, but Nathan and his fellow contributors make a case for it as one of British cinema's cornerstones.

Key personnel are explored in detail: star Richard Attenborough, who had previously played the film's "young Scarface", Pinkie Brown, on stage; socially minded producer/directors the Boulting brothers; and, of course, co-screenwriter Graham Greene, who insisted on retaining the darkness and religious anguish of his novel. Helpfully, Brighton Rock can be streamed on ITVX Premium and StudioCanal Presents. CALUM BAKER

Paul O'Grady: for the Love of Dogs

8.30pm ITV (not Scotland)
Catch up via ITVX

Sadly, it can take more than one attempt to find a forever home for a rescue dog. Scruff, a huge, boisterous pointer has already been returned to Battersea once because he's such a handful. "It's like having a donkey on a lead," is the late Paul O'Grady's verdict. Labrador cross Bea is another returnee because she, too, is full of energy and jumps up at people. So the team decide that if they can't fit into a family home, they need to work. "What – in a shop?" asks Paul. Not quite. They both try out to be a "passive drugs dog" with the prison service. Passive isn't the first word that springs to Paul's mind about these two... JR

Helping Our Teens

9.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

The second and final part of this documentary sees child behaviour expert Marie Gentles continue her work to help "difficult" pupils at Beacon Hill Academy in the Midlands. Among them are Scott, whose severe anxiety means he struggles with the bustle of school life, and Oliver, who is bubbly but frequently has physical confrontations with teachers.

Then there's Jayliyah, who we met in last week's opener. The repeatedly excluded teen may be preparing for a school talent show, but her in-class outbursts continue. Marie can see glimmers of improvement, though, and the moment when Jayliyah's face lights up when she realises she's completed a whole year at school is genuinely beautiful. CERI THOMAS

The Lovers

9pm Sky Atlantic Catch up: Now

Seamus (Johnny Flynn) has a girlfriend and it's not Janet (Roisin Gallagher), the woman he met in Belfast. We saw him reunite with his partner Frankie (Alice Eve) in London at the end of last week's episode and she seems lovely – supportive of his career, ambitious about her own goals and beautiful to boot...

Which makes it nigh-on impossible to root for this burgeoning affair. As Seamus flies back to Belfast, the pair question whether they should be doing what they may, or may not, be about to do. The "we're from different worlds" set-up would have created enough friction between them. The illicit element should've been left on the cutting room floor.

SERIES FINALE

With season finales, I'm of the belief that TV writers need to deliver on promises. Gratification ought not to be deferred any longer. Rather, plotlines must be smashed together at the speed of particles in the Large Hadron Collider. Thankfully, this last episode is high-impact stuff, with the inmates discovering the identity of the undercover police officer, who himself unmasks the killer he's been seeking behind bars.

TENSE TIMES
Leigh, Governor Mayhew and visiting MP Anya Forsyth have their work cut out

But there are thoughtful moments, too, amid the snarling stand-offs, with the visit by a hard-line "prison works" government minister (it'll take you all of two seconds to work out who she's modelled on) allowing for pertinent reflections on punishment, rehabilitation and the limitations of the system. We can but hope that writer and creator Rob Williams doesn't get parole and is commissioned to come up with another series. DB

FILM OF THE DAY

Captain Phillips ★★★★★ 10.40pm-12.45am BBC1 (11.20pm in N Ireland, Wales) 12

DRAMA Director Paul Greengrass (United 93) pulls no punches with this true-life tale, with Tom Hanks as Richard Phillips, the captain of a US cargo ship hijacked by Somali pirates in 2009. Greengrass re-creates the events with heart-pounding urgency, conveying the growing desperation of both Phillips and lead pirate Muse (Barkhad Abdi) after the initial, breathtakingly staged raid goes awry. It all builds to a dizzying emotional crescendo in the final scenes, with Hanks at the very peak of his powers. STELLA PAPAMICHAEL (US 2013, violence, swearing, HD)

Just for You ★★

11.10am-12.30pm

Talking Pictures TV PG

MUSICAL Released in 1964, this confection sees radio host Sam Costa introduce "today's stars singing tomorrow's hits". Among the pop combos are The Merseybeats, The Bachelors and Freddie and the Dreamers, who perform the title track and their pop smash You Were Made For Me. Director Douglas Hickox has fun with the stylised stagings. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1964)

The Sons of Katie Elder ★★★★★

1.25-3.55pm Film4 U

WESTERN Rio Bravo stars John Wayne and Dean Martin reunite in this terrific movie, riding out with Earl Holliman and Michael Anderson Jr to avenge the death of their father. It's stirring stuff, well-paced and beautifully filmed, and Martha Hyer adds some dignity with a heartfelt speech about matriarchal virtue. TONY SLOMAN (US 1965, HD)

Ice Cold in Alex ★★★★★

3.55-6.35pm Film4 PG

WAR This is the film in which John Mills swigs the most famous glass of beer in movie history. And he's earned it, too, having steered clear of the bottle as well as Axis troops to leads are capable enough, but they play second fiddle to the spectacular set pieces devised by director Roland Emmerich. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US 2013, violence, swearing, HD)

Fifty Shades Freed ★★

9.00-11.10pm Great Movies 18

DRAMA The lacklustre final instalment in the erotic saga finds Christian (Jamie Dornan) and Anastasia (Dakota Johnson) married. But their wedded bliss is compromised by Christian's possessiveness, Ana's psycho ex-boss and a bombshell revelation. Like the first two films, it's slick, glossy and all rather silly. DA (US 2018, swearing, sex scenes, nudity)

Hellboy ★★★★★

10.30pm-12.55am ITV4 12

ADVENTURE Having worked his magic on Blade II, director Guillermo del Toro repeated the trick with this adaptation of Mike Mignola's comic book. Ron Perlman brings unusual depth to the cigar-chomping demon intended by the Nazis for acts of evil, but instead raised by the Allies to be an agent of good. It's rare for a superhero movie to be both clever and fun. SLOAN FREER (US 2004, violence, swearing, HD)

Balloon ★★★★★

11.40pm-1.35am BBC4 12

THRILLER You wouldn't think a family outing in a hot air balloon would be a big deal. But when the year is 1979 and you are desperate to flee East Germany, the stakes are high. The true story of how two families were driven to defect has been told before, but Michael Herbig's version of events is funny and thrilling. KAREN KRIZANOVICH (Ger 2018, swearing, HD)

DOCUMENTARY Coco Chanel Unbuttoned

9.00pm (11.05pm N Ireland) BBC2
Catch up via iPlayer

As London's V&A Museum opens its doors to a new Chanel exhibition, Hannah Berryman's polished Arena profile tries to get to the essence of French fashion designer Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel. It's a tricky job. As one of her biographers says, "There's a darkness at the heart of all great fairy tales" – while the "Can bad people create good art?" question bubbles underneath throughout. Chanel herself – no shrinking violet – was certainly not interested in rehashing her own past.

There are contradictions aplenty. She was born illegitimately in the provinces in 1883, but had a ten-year affair with the Duke of Westminster. She financially supported Stravinsky and Cocteau, but became notorious for her Nazi sympathies. She freed women from the constraints of the corset, but in the process forced on them the constraint of keeping thin. Yet through grit and hard work she was a trailblazer for women in the workplace and can be called one of the world's first influencers. And the LBD, tweed suits and Chanel No 5 she created are still symbols of glamour today.

The Lottery Millionaire and the Spirit of Belfast: Our Lives

7.30pm (9.00pm N Ireland, not Wales) BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

Unless you live in Northern Ireland, you may not know the name Peter Lavery – the former bus driver who, in 1996, won £10.2m on the National Lottery. After going down the usual route of buying expensive cars, holidays and a big house, Lavery was so inspired by the history of whiskey distilling in Belfast that in 2020 he launched his own brand, Titanic Distillers, and has converted the listed dockside building where the Titanic was fitted out into a distillery. Here, Lavery reflects on life since his momentous win. JANE RACKHAM

Gardeners' World

8.00pm (not N Ireland) BBC2
Catch up via iPlayer

There's a colourful air to this week's edition with Frances Tophill visiting a nursery in Kent that's full of salvias, a lovely plant that throws up bright spikes of densely packed blossoms in shades of purple, blue, red, pink and white. Meanwhile, Adam Frost is in Manchester, where a project is bringing a touch of green (come on, it's still a colour) to the city's industrial past. And Monty Don is in Longmeadow's cottage garden, where he demonstrates how to get new plants for free – not by nicking your neighbour's, but by dividing existing perennials. JR

Puppy School for Guide Dogs

8.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5

At any one time there are 500 dogs in training at puppy school but the process of becoming a guide dog, assistance dog or buddy dog is not a simple one. It also involves volunteer puppy raisers and foster families (who temporarily look after a dog during training) while the potential owners need lessons, too. We catch up with visually impaired teenager Hester, who is being taught to read Pickle's body language and know the commands that will give her independence. We also see why Tinker is a good buddy dog to Carmella, who has muscular dystrophy, and how timid Riley is suited to helping Isaac, who has a neurological condition. JR

In Concert

from 9.00pm BBC4 Catch up via iPlayer
Big names have been plucked from the BBC's live archive, with few bigger than Paul McCartney kicking us off. His intimate 2013 gig is a pleasing mix of Beatles, Wings and solo work, from Hey Jude to Junior's Farm. James Taylor, long-haired and laid-back, creates a more acoustic vibe at 10pm in his 1971 concert (yes, that is Carole King on piano!), including Fire and Rain and King's You've Got a Friend. Jackson Browne offers a countryfied set from 1976 at 10.45pm. Finally at 11.35pm, by way of tribute to the late Gordon Lightfoot, there's his superb 1972 concert. Admire the skill of his writing in Summer Side of Life and If You Could Read My Mind. "Heroes often fail," as the memorable line goes. Not that night. MARK BRAXTON

Jane McDonald: Lost in Japan

9.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5
Jane McDonald's Japanese education continues in bustling Osaka, known as the kitchen of Japan because of its gastronomic reputation. "In most hotels you get a chocolate on your pillow," she says, having stepped into her massive, very stylish room and spotted a table decoration made of sweets, "Here there's a candyfloss bonsai tree!" Jane's an enthusiastic traveller, embracing all her experiences, whether that's eating octopus balls, taking the world's highest escalator to get a bird's-eye view of the city or trying her hand at calligraphy. She loves it all but – for once – doesn't break into song about it. JR

DRAMA

Rig 45: Murder at Sea

9.00pm More4 Catch up via C4 streaming
There have been so many murders by this stage, you're probably thinking that it can't be long before there's only one person left on the oil rig – the killer. However, we don't get to that point because the five survivors must escape from the rig before it blows up. That means that they've got to get themselves over to the crew-less supply ship that is floating – Marie Celeste-like – several hundred metres across the freezing North Sea waters. You may have already changed your mind several times about which of the Benthos Oil staff members is guilty, but fortunately the possibilities are narrowing in this penultimate episode. JR

HAIR-RAISING
Agnes (Brendan O'Carroll) has another eventful week

SITCOM

Mrs Brown's Boys

9.30pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer
Snobs might dismiss the divisive Irish sitcom as being stuck in the past, but it has moved with the times in at least one respect – tonight the characters are all obsessed with playing Wordle. Unfortunately, the word-game app is nearly giving Agnes (Brendan O'Carroll) an aneurysm. The second of four ebullient new episodes also sees our loud-mouthed matriarch try speed-dating at local pub Foley's, with proceedings descending into chaos when the womenfolk end up fighting over a handsome Frenchman. Elsewhere, a promotional scheme cooked up by dodgy duo Buster (O'Carroll's son Danny) and Dermot (Paddy Houlihan, who co-wrote this episode) backfires at the Wash 'n' Blow salon. Can Agnes and best pal Winnie (O'Carroll's sister Eilish) save the day? Meanwhile, the arrival of a new neighbour puts the pair's friendship to the test.

HISTORICAL ADVENTURE Director Alejandro González Iñárritu's follow-up to his Oscar winner Birdman is another astonishing piece of film-making. An epic true story of revenge and redemption, it stars a shaggy Leonardo DiCaprio as a frontiersman who is mauled by a bear and then left for dead by Tom Hardy's fur trapper. Here's a movie where the elements ooze from every shot, and DiCaprio matches it by baring his wounds and his soul in an Oscar-winning performance of agonising honesty and intense emotion. JEREMY ASPINALL (US 2015, violence, HD)

Chimes at Midnight

★★★★★ 10.20am-12.40pm

Talking Pictures TV PG

COMEDY DRAMA Orson Welles's funny and poignant tribute to Shakespeare is a distillation of five of the Bard's plays. It follows bloated boozier Falstaff (Welles) and Prince Hal (Keith Baxter) as the royal heir evolves from wastrel to King Henry V. Shakespeare has rarely been rendered for the screen so cleverly. JA (Swi/Sp 1966, some violence, brief nudity, BW)

The Pearl of Death

★★★ 1.35-3.00pm Sky Arts PG

MYSTERY This decent Sherlock Holmes story sees Baker Street's finest – as played by Basil Rathbone – encounter the Creeper (Rondo Hatton), who emerges from the shadows as homicidal sidekick to a villainous jewel thief (Miles Mander). The story's ostensibly about a set of Napoleon statues, but it's Hatton you'll be watching. TOM HUTCHINSON (US 1944, BW, HD)

HORROR New to Talking Pictures TV, this sardonic and frightening movie sees widow Shelley Hack and daughter Jill Schoelen gradually come to realise that the affable new man of the house (Terry O'Quinn) is a serial killer. Joseph Ruben's faultless direction sets the unfolding mayhem against an unsettling backdrop of mundane normality. ALAN JONES (US 1986, violence, swearing, nudity)

The Big Boss

11.05pm-1.05am Sky Max 18

ACTION Bruce Lee's breakthrough Hong Kong film is a bit rough around the edges, but it is an electrifying example of the martial arts master at work. Lee plays a young man who travels to Thailand, promising to keep out of trouble only to get caught up with a drugs ring. Lee's charisma shines throughout and there are some stunning set pieces. JF (HK 1971, violence, swearing, nudity, HD)

A Bigger Splash

11.30pm-1.30am BBC1

(starts 12 midnight in Wales) 15

DRAMA This sun-baked tale is set on a small island off Sicily and revolves around Tilda Swinton's rock star, who is enjoying a holiday with her partner. But their peace is shattered by the arrival of record producer Ralph Fiennes and his daughter (Dakota Johnson). Tensions soon begin to rise, in what is a cool, funny and sexually charged affair. STEPHEN CARTY (It/Fr 2015, swearing, sex scenes, nudity, drug abuse, HD)

Fighting Talk Saturday 11.00am Radio 5 Live

HE IMMEDIATELY ORDERED kippers," says Rick Edwards. "I found that really pleasing. Of all the things you can imagine Johnny Vaughan ordering it would be kippers. And it was kippers." Appropriately enough, the host of Radio 5 Live's Breakfast was meeting Vaughan, a man who made his name fronting The Big Breakfast in the late 90s, to discuss his role as the new host of Fighting Talk... over breakfast. Vaughan was the original host of the verbal sporting slugfest 20 years ago and his production company still makes the multi-award-winning show.

"My younger self would have been very excited," continues Edwards, 44. "I grew up

'Colin Murray's advice isn't suitable for public sharing' watching him in the mornings and Iain Lee on The 11 O'Clock Show and I remember thinking, "These guys are really good, I wonder if I could do something like that." It turns out he could. Edwards has fronted several series, mainly across Channel 4, and, from 2017 to 2021, the quiz show Impossible on BBC1. "It was doing really well and I do miss it but, inexplicably, the Beeb didn't want to do it any more."

Now based full-time in Manchester with his actress/screenwriter wife Emer Kenny (Zsa Zsa Carter in EastEnders) and their seven-month-old son, he will juggle fatherhood and early morning starts on Breakfast with several other projects including his Science(ish) podcast, "fairly regular dialogue" about TV opportunities in America – he went down well hosting NBC reality dating show The Courtship two years ago – and now Fighting Talk.

He is well aware of the show's revered status. "[The production company] asked me, 'Do you want to rip it all up? Do you want all new rounds?' And I was like, 'No. It's successful for a reason and I really like it both as a listener and as someone who's been on it.' There might be some tinkering around the edges but nothing massive. People aren't going to tune in and go, 'What is this?'" He insists it is definitely going to be evolution, not revolution.

"I was on Countdown with [erstwhile Fighting Talk host] Colin Murray and we had a chat about it. I don't think any of the advice he gave me is suitable to be shared publicly, which tells you everything you need to know," he laughs, pretending to hint at trade secrets and opinions about panellists behind the scenes at the show. "But the main takeaway for me was that he thinks that I will do a decent job... he may have just been saying that, of course."

Following a stint on the open mic stand-up circuit after university ("I was OK, but not as good as others like Joe Wilkinson, who I was in a double act with briefly, and Diane Morgan"), Edwards is backing himself to be able to handle whatever the pundits throw at him.

HE THINKS THEY fall into three camps: some who read out scripted answers; most (like him) who sketch out what they are going to say and then freestyle; and Bob Mills. "I was on as a pundit with him a couple of times," he laughs. "And I swear he had nothing prepared and made it all up on the spot."

Mills can count on an invitation to the new series, but are there any regulars who won't need to check their inboxes? "I don't think so,"

Edwards says. He adds, intriguingly, "Even if I personally didn't like somebody, it wouldn't necessarily make for bad radio."

He has a fantasy line-up (Liverpool football legend Bill Shankly, tennis great Martina Navratilova, four-time F1 champion Alain Prost and, "although he'd be a complete nightmare", boxing promoter and former fighter Floyd "Money" Mayweather) but, within the realms of the possible, the one pundit he'd love to see on the show is 76-year-old former England manager Roy Hodgson. "Maybe it comes from the time after one game when Hodgson told a reporter to stop taking the p, I don't know, but I have a vague idea that it would be really funny."

Fighting Talk is in safe hands. BILL BORROWS

CLASSICAL MUSIC

Last Night of the Proms

Saturday 7.00pm Radio 3

Last year's Last Night didn't happen. This year's programme, largely recycled from what we should have heard then, includes two works to remind us why: Walton's Coronation Te Deum, composed for the late Queen's crowning in 1953, and Roxanna Panufnik's Coronation Sanctus, commissioned for King Charles's coronation. Before the festive finale, soprano Lise Davidsen sings arias by Wagner, Verdi, Mascagni and Kalman, and duets with cellist Sheku Kanneh-Mason in Villa-Lobos's Bachianas Brasileiras No 5. MARK PAPPENHEIM

POETRY

Three Faces of WH Auden

Tuesday 11.30am Radio 4

Radio 4 is currently excelling itself in honouring great poets, with this outstanding series on WH Auden – who died 50 years ago this month – following on from an equally fine look at Seamus Heaney. Auden gets three programmes to Heaney's four but presenter Michael Symmons Roberts is highly effective in showing why he still matters by separating him into distinct aspects: the love poet, the metaphysical poet, and – to begin – the political poet. "When the language goes to pieces, morals go to pieces," Auden said – a dictum that will never not be relevant. SIMON O'HAGAN

DOCUMENTARY

The Reunion

Sunday 11.15am Radio 4

Founded in the Midlands in the early 1980s, the Blk Art Group comprised painters, sculptors and conceptual artists of African-Caribbean descent. Their experience of being black in a Britain with far-right groups on the rise fuelled pointedly political exhibitions critiquing race, class and gender relations. The work promoted a distinct black-British political identity and influenced the likes of Turner Prize winners Chris Ofili and Steve McQueen. Kirsty Wark talks to founding members Marlene Smith and Wenda Leslie, Eugene Palmer (whose 1984 oil painting The Brother is pictured), and close associate of the collective, Tam Joseph.

Mugshots With Michael Crick

This series of profiles of newsmakers such as Keir Starmer, Jürgen Klopp, Kemi Badenoch, Sir Jim Ratcliffe and Angela Rayner from BBC veteran Crick does a good job of covering the salient biographical facts, while also introducing the stiletto of opinion – in most cases provided by people who have had dealings with the subject. Here you'll pick up valuable items of intelligence, such as that Starmer probably hasn't ever taken drugs because he's always been working too hard. DAVID HEPWORTH

TRUE CRIME

The Missing Madonna

This is a tale of "aristocrats, gangsters and chancers" according to Olivia Graham, narrator of what is an intriguing nine-part series. Throw in some outrageous twists, double-crosses and locations that range from pink castles to pub car parks and you get a sense of the rollicking adventure behind it. It's the true story of the theft of Leonardo da Vinci's painting Madonna of the Yarnwinder from a stately home in Dumfries and Galloway back in 2003. It was soon to be placed on the FBI's list of Top Ten Art Crimes, valued at £30 million. But for Graham there is a personal connection – her father, Robbie, was a private investigator hoping to recover the stolen painting and his hunt had a major impact on the whole family. ANNA JONES

DRAMA

Everyone's Happy

All the ingredients of a satisfying bedtime story are to be found here. From GravyTree Media's team of two, it's an ambitious eight-part eco-thriller set in a dystopian future, with some good ideas – not all fully realised – and a creative soundscape. Parker, 17, lives in a city covered by a giant dome, where citizens are compelled by the sinister governing body known as "The System" to take happy pills to keep them sweet. The problem for our hero is that they don't work on her. FIONA HUGHES

DOCUMENTARY

Stranger Becomes Neighbor

When the Taliban returned to power in Afghanistan in 2021, some 80,000 refugees fled the country for America. But what happened next? Written and presented by journalist Andrea Smardon, this six-part series hears from resettlement agents, the refugees themselves and more. Their tales of hardship are countered by acts of extraordinary kindness and, while the overeager narration grates, this is a podcast with its heart in the right place. MARK GLASBY

ARTS AND CULTURE

Kaleidoscope

Axed as part of a major shake-up of Radio 4's schedule in April 1998 and replaced by Front Row, the loss of Kaleidoscope was eventually accepted by listeners as more of an irritation than a purge. These nine episodes reflect the series at its best, with lengthier interviews rather than a carousel of arts news. It's definitely worth listening back to Stuart Maconie's conversation with the reclusive singer/songwriter Scott Walker and Lynne Walker's encounter with the American composer Steve Reich. AJ

DOCUMENTARY

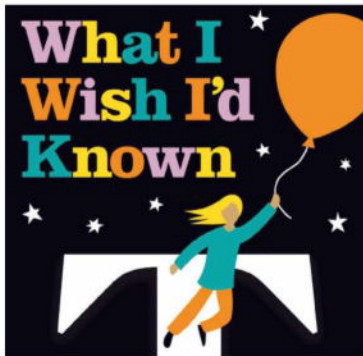

RNLI: 200 Voices

In the run-up to its 200th anniversary in March 2024, the Royal National Lifeboat Institution has, since 18 August, been releasing daily, bite-sized talks featuring celebrity endorsers, serving crew and people who have been rescued. Given the dangerous, life-saving work, the often self-congratulatory tone is to be expected, while the stories of rescues pack an emotional punch and remind us how thankful we should be for the volunteers who keep us safe on the sea. DAVID CRAWFORD

INTERVIEWS

What I Wish I'd Known

In the podcast formerly known as Past Imperfect, Alice Thomson and Rachel Sylvester continue to explore how adversity has shaped the lives of well-known figures from politics, sport and showbiz. Reflections on past interviews dovetail with recent fare, which includes senior Tory Michael Gove, musing on his upbringing in 1970s Aberdeen. Open and erudite, even when discussing drugs, Boris Johnson and Grenfell, he's only lost for words when asked if he could have done a better job than Liz Truss. JEREMY ASPINALL

HISTORY

Bad Manors

In Tom Houghton's latest podcast, the "ultra-privileged" comic visits stately homes to root out their "frightening, filthy and downright jaw-dropping stories". Oakley Court in Berkshire – once a ruin, now a hotel – is a representative destination. You may recognise the front door from The Rocky Horror Picture Show, but are you ready for the real-life horrors of Room 110? Houghton is on to a winner here – he's jovial though not overbearing (other podcasters take note) and I wanted to hear what he'd come out with next. DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

THIS WEEK Joining Kelly-Anne Taylor is author and journalist Caroline O'Donoghue. Caroline's podcast Sentimental Garbage celebrates guilty pleasures – from Gilmore Girls to Little Women to Taylor Swift. Here, Caroline discusses how she's got so much mileage out of her comfort TV Sex in the City, and why The Simpsons taught her everything she needed to know. Available 5 September.

Next Year in Moscow

The flight of many Russians from their country in the wake of the invasion of Ukraine tells its own story. But to catch up with them – as The Economist's Arkady Ostrovsky does in this compelling series – adds fascinating detail, in terms of both their experiences seeking new lives elsewhere and the ideas and insights they offer. Ostrovsky's sonorous delivery combined with the use of music make for an atmospheric listen. SIMON O'HAGAN

How podcasts are killing the art of comedy

ALISTAIR MCGOWAN RECKONS the bottom has fallen out of the impressionists market. There's no longer much point perfecting your imitation of the latest TV star if it's to be wasted on an audience who follow an entirely different TV diet and therefore aren't sure who it is you're "doing". It used to be so simple. Back in the days of Mike Yarwood, a repertoire of Michael Crawford, Larry Grayson and a dozen TV stars, plus three politicians, and you had the cultural waterfront pretty much covered.

McGowan's complaint is just another straw in the wind of the nation's unfolding comedy crisis. Time was, there was a clear division of labour. Back then the comedians did the jokes and we just sat there and dutifully laughed at their work. Then came social media, in which the majority of all communications are written in the faint hope of eliciting – at the very least – a smile among the author's social circle, and it's no longer clear who's doing the gags and who's doing the laughing. It seems that nobody has actually told a proper joke since the 20th century.

THEN CAME PODCASTING, a medium with an evidently insatiable appetite for duos made up of one person who knows all about the specialist subject and another who – the listener comes to deduce – plainly doesn't, and therefore must be the party referred to in the billing as "comedian". This format carries with it the danger that the expert will feel that they should also be reaching for laughs and the comedian will feel they have to show that they're not simply there for light relief.

Meanwhile, the podcast comedy charts are increasingly occupied by former footballers and their spouses, common-or-garden social media show-offs and other non-comedians trying to be funny. They sit uneasily alongside comedians trying to see if it's possible to pass 40 minutes without using up their precious material. The results can be funny; they will rarely be funny ha-ha. Maybe they should rename this section of the charts. Drop the word "comedy" and replace it with "facetious".

TODAY'S CHOICES

Archive on 4: Bryan Magee – Man of Ideas

8.00pm Radio 4

It may seem unusual now, but discussion of philosophy was popular primetime fare on the BBC in the 1970s and 80s. Credit for making such an abstract subject layman-friendly should go to writer, broadcaster and former Labour MP Bryan Magee (above), who not only presented numerous radio and TV shows about the giants of philosophical thought but also interviewed contemporary leading lights like Karl Popper, Noam Chomsky and Peter Singer (author of Animal Liberation and a contributor here). This homage to Magee's life and legacy – he died in 2019 – also ponders what place popular philosophy holds in today's ever-changing media landscape. JEREMY ASPINALL

The intriguing master potter and prize-winning author Edmund de Waal is John Wilson's latest interviewee. His 2010 family memoir, The Hare with Amber Eyes, told of de Waal's Jewish relatives, the Ephrussi family, and the collection of Japanese netsuke ivory miniatures handed down to de Waal by his great-uncle. Here he talks about first encountering Zen, aged 17, on a visit to Roan-ji Temple in Kyoto, the influence of ceramicist Lucie Rie and playing the music of John Cage and Philip Glass in the studio while he works. FIONA HUGHES

RT Angie Hobbs, Professor of Public Understanding of Philosophy at Sheffield University, looks back at the life and career of Bryan Magee, a British philosopher, broadcaster, politician and author, best known for bringing philosophy to a popular audience. The programme asks what place popular philosophy and public intellectualism occupies in today's culture, in an age of fragmented, divisive and discombobulating media discourse. The sound of bats hunting in a Texan cave; a brass band playing acid house; women from Vanuatu "drumming" on water; a Palestinian folk-rock group performing the Beatles' Get Back; an electronic version of the folk song Constant Billy accompanied by female Morris dancers. Some of the selections of Turner Prize-winning artist Jeremy Deller (above) may sound like an entry for Private Eye's Pseud's Corner but he is far removed from pretentious. In fact, his belief that art and music are a way of remaining in love with the world is inspirational. This is definitely worth a listen and traditionalists will be pleased to learn there's also some Beethoven and Vaughan Williams. ANNA JONES

Sunday Feature: Brazilian Modernist Godfather

6.45pm Radio 3

Katie Derham has been a familiar voice on Radio 3 for many years. But all this time she has been sitting on a tremendous story from her family's past – that of poet and giant of Brazilian modernism Manuel Bandeira, who was Derham's father's godfather. Out of this grows a fascinating study of how Brazil, once de-colonised, established its own culture – the "interwoven identities" that Derham finds in Bandeira's personality reflecting the country's own. The memories of Derham's 94-year-old aunt Sasha are a delight. SIMON O'HAGAN

6.45 Sunday Feature: Brazilian Modernist Godfather

In 1922, the centenary year of Brazil's independence, a group of artists in Sao Paulo organised a Modern Arts Week of music, poetry, and talks, which on the whole was greeted with anger and derision. Today, 100 years on, the Semana de Arte Moderna is recognised as a pivotal moment in the development of art, and in forever changing the identity of Brazil itself. This is the story of those revolutionary modernist artists who advocated "cannibalism" in order to liberate Brazil from colonial history and European ideals. Katie Derham explores the movement. Producers Redzi Bernard and Phoebe McIndoe

Lego Overboard

8.00pm Radio 4

Few stories serve as a better microcosm for the impact plastic pollution is having on our oceans than the tale of the lost Lego container. In 1997, a freak wave hit a cargo ship off Land's End that was carrying five million pieces of sea-themed Lego. Some 26 years later, miniature octopuses, scuba tanks, life rafts, flippers and sharks are still turning up on Cornwall's coastline. Robin Markwell meets beachcomber Tracey Williams, who has set up a social media account allowing people to share their finds, including the rare and highly coveted green dragons. Together they journey around the county meeting fishermen, families and artists who have discovered the pieces. What emerges is a picture of a fun and quirky pastime that, unfortunately, could endure for centuries to come.

The Gift

11.00am Radio 4

As reporter Jenny Kleeman notes, "Millions of us have spat into a tube and sent a vial of our DNA to a company like Ancestry and 23andMe." So far, so entertaining, the perfect gift for the person who has everything. But what if a DNA test reveals a secret that was assumed hidden for ever? In this series, Kleeman meets people whose lives have been upended by the collision of technology and genealogy. This first episode includes a woman who breaks down in tears at one point in what comes close to an obsession with discovering the identity of her birth father. It feels almost too personal – unlike the DNA kit services on offer.

11.30 Analysis

6/9. Does Work Have to Be Miserable?
 Pauline Mason investigates job design, a process of work innovation that focuses on people, rather than technology. Proponents claim it gives workers a voice in their workplace, allows them to balance their work and home lives, stops burnout and could get more of the economically inactive back in employment. But what evidence is there that it works – and how difficult would it be to implement changes in the workplace? Producer Ravi Naik; Editor Clare Fordham (R)

1.45 The Immortals
6/10. Longevity Escape Velocity. Aleks Krotoski continues her exploration of the frontiers of the extreme longevity pioneers. Many of the innovators in Silicon Valley want to extend human life. But there are others who are trying to eliminate death. They believe they can solve death by re-engineering the human in code. While it seems unlikely to happen in their natural lifetime, every year, computing power doubles. Once a decade, the amount of change produces a whole new paradigm. All episodes are available on BBC Sounds. Producer Aleks Krotoski

Izabela in the Forest

9.30am/8.05pm
World Service

The photograph above shows a Polish sound recordist called Izabela Dluzyk, and she's at work in Europe's last primeval forest, which straddles the Poland/Belarus border and has been around for 12,000 years. In every way this is a remarkable and uplifting story. Izabela has been blind from birth – her sensitivity to sound underpins everything she does. And with its panoply of birdsong, the sounds the forest throws up are just glorious. The forest is also home to rare and fragile species of plants and animals – a world that is captured beautifully by the outstanding World Service producer Monica Whitlock.

Radio 3 in Concert

7.30pm Radio 3

As with every year, the end of the BBC Proms season allows Radio 3 to start catching up with the UK's other great summer music festival, with the rest of this week's lunchtime and evening concerts all having been recorded last month in Edinburgh. Tonight Nicola Benedetti, the EIF's new director, lays aside her violin and joins Radio 3's Tom Service onstage to introduce an all-contemporary programme including a Hans Abrahamsen song-cycle inspired by Shakespeare's Ophelia and Mark-Anthony Turnage's musical meta-portrait of three of Francis Bacon's "screaming popes". Kalki Presents: My Indian Life – Savita

11.30am/10.30pm
World Service

What brought tears to my eyes was not England's defeat in the Women's World Cup Final but the determination on the face of Spanish player Jennifer Hermoso as she squared up to her penalty kick. That face at that moment just seemed to sum up the heroic single-mindedness of pioneering sportswomen. The extraordinary story of world record-holding mountaineer Savita Kanswal packs even more of an emotional punch. Her triumph is, of course, tinged by deep sadness since Savita, aged 26, was one of the 27 killed last year in a Himalayan avalanche. Before the catastrophe, Kalki Koechlin had already spent some hours interviewing Savita about how she had escaped the domestic destiny of an ordinary village girl to become the first Indian woman to conquer Everest. Sheer guts and strength of will is the answer. FIONA HUGHES

Please Use Next Door

6.30pm Radio 4

This sketch show devised by Bill Dare, whose name has been appearing in comedy show credits since Spitting Image in the 1990s, first landed last year. The "short scenes from modern life", created by a squad of mostly new writers, are intended for those of us who find it demanding to cope with modern life as represented by woke sensibilities, gender politics and the computer that says no et al. Occasionally the humour strays into more challenging surrealism reminiscent of Chris Morris. But mostly it's situations without punch lines. It has a skilful sheen, but in 2022 we regretted there weren't more laugh-out-loud moments. Little has changed. DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

TODAY'S CHOICES

Free Thinking

10.00pm Radio 3

Indisputably one of Powell and Pressburger's finest achievements, and the screen's greatest paean to ballet, 1948's The Red Shoes (starring Moira Shearer, above) continues to inspire young people to dance and film-makers to pay homage to its unforgettable images and spectacular artistry. It's unlikely there would be a Black Swan (2010) without The Red Shoes. It's the subject of a book in the BFI Film Classics series to be published next month. Author Pamela Hutchinson is one of Matthew Sweet's guests tonight. "A critic once said that British cinema was like an album of faded photographs," notes Sweet. "He must have forgotten about The Red Shoes. It burns with colour and violent desire." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

"All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights." Previously broadcast by Radio 3 in a specially arranged version to mark Human Rights Day 2020, cult composer Max Richter's Voices is heard again tonight in a live recording made at the Jodrell Bank Observatory in Cheshire in July. Opening with an archive recording of Eleanor Roosevelt reading from Article 1 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and incorporating samples of voices from around the world reciting the Declaration in over 70 languages, it features Oscar-winning actor Tilda Swinton as narrator. MARK PAPPENHEIM

Soul Music

8.30pm Radio 4 Extra

In a kinder world, the British soul singer Amy Winehouse (above) would have celebrated her 40th birthday this month. Instead, we're left with her ageless music and a cautionary tale of soaring celebrity and spiralling addiction. First broadcast in 2019, this excellent retrospective focuses on her 2006 torch song Back to Black, rounding up experts and fans to pay tribute to the "millennial I Will Survive". Author Donald Brackett talks about its 1960s aural inspirations. Journalist Daisy Buchanan recounts how it helped her get through a toxic love affair of her own. But the most moving moment comes when we hear Winehouse belting out the song, unaccompanied, in those husky, haunted tones. As Buchanan puts it: "When Amy sang she was the only person in the whole world that knew."

MATT GLASBY

Drama: The System

2.15pm Radio 4

First broadcast two years ago as part of Radio 4's Limelight strand of dramas, which the network hopes will attract younger audiences, The System is back for its third and final run. Whether or not the target age group tunes in is irrelevant. It works as a fast-paced thriller and it's pleasing to see the up-and-down relationship between half-brother and sister Jake (Jack Rowan) and Maya (Siena Kelly) remains as its emotional heart. This time, the dystopian story, set in the not-too-distant future, includes an Elon Musk-style billionaire with way too much power and influence. "Play or get played" is his sinister tag line, but will either sibling survive this terrifying game? ANNA JONES

12.00 Composer of the Week: Chávez
5/5. Constant Rebirth. Donald Macleod explores Chávez's legacy through the music of his students. At 70, Chávez was still producing some of the most exciting compositions of his career, though his most interesting work was perhaps as a teacher. He was openly critical of the conservatory's failure to produce competent composers, and so was developing his own techniques, teaching his pupils to take classic pieces and transform them, making the piece their own. Chávez raised the next generation of Mexican composers, but in his final years he left Mexico behind. Symphony No 6 (3rd mv) London Symphony Orchestra, conductor Eduardo Mata

New series. 1/5. Five Methods for Overcoming Mortality – Method 1:

Denial. The third and final series of the award-winning thriller, written by Ben Lewis. Maya and Jake were once close siblings. Now they're divided in an increasingly divided world. Maya's infamy as an activist fighting for social change and climate consciousness has pushed her to the margins, while Jake's commitment to serve king and country has placed him at the centre of a society increasingly intolerant of people on the fringe. But Maya and Jake's worlds are about to collide in what will become a fight for survival.

Face behind the voice Rob Charles Liverpool Live

Age 60
Current job
 Has presented the breakfast show on Liverpool Live (Mon–Fri, 6am–10) since 2022. "It's bright and cheerful. I always play the music that makes you feel 'up! No slow songs! At that time of the morning you need to be uplifted." He also presents Songs That Don't Get Played on the Radio Anymore (Sat, 7pm–9), a show syndicated to 20 stations around the world. "Radio stations seem to play the same 1,500 songs over and over again. The number of responses I get – 'I've not heard this for ages!'"
CV Born in Nottingham, he did two years in catering college. "My goal was always radio, but my dad said, 'You always need to fall back on something.' First heard on hospital radio in Wythenshawe in 1982, he got his first professional gig on Radio West in Ireland in 1986. He then worked for the Voice of Peace in Israel (a station to which he subsequently returned in 2011).

He worked at Radio Caroline, and then the pirate KFM, working with the likes of Caroline Aherne, Craig Cash, Jon Ronson and Terry Christian. Next came Radio Top Shop in Manchester and Liverpool. He then did stints on Rock FM, Century Radio, Magic 999 (now Greatest Hits Lancashire) and The Bee. Magic 999 had evolved out of Red Rose Radio, a title Charles bought and relaunched in 2022. He hosts their breakfast show. "Yes, I'm doing two stations at once. In between the songs, I pre-record links for both stations!" He also presents on the English-speaking Spanish station TKO. He joined Liverpool Live in 2021. He is the "Forever FM" DJ on Peter Kay's series Car Share. Since 2017 he has been the ground announcer for Preston North End.
Social media – yes or no? "Definitely yes. I can find out what's going on instantly and people can find out what's going on with me instantly as well!"
Best moments "Working with Caroline and Craig. They were nice people, really down-to-earth."

Worst moment Interviewing one of my heroes, Hugh Cornwell of the Stranglers. For some bizarre reason I kept calling him Hugh Grant! He wasn't best pleased."
Off air He lives in Chorley, Lancs, with his wife Kathy, who works for the NHS. His son is Jamie Smith, bass guitarist with the Forensics. His daughters are Sophie and Katie. "Sophie's due to make me a granddad for the first time."
First radio memory "Listening to Excerpt from a Teenage Opera by Keith West on Radio Caroline."
Favourite broadcasters "Kenny Everett. When I was working for hospital radio, I sent him a letter and asked him to do me some jingles. He went out of his way and put on the envelope, 'Don't tell everybody. They'll all want one.' [Do you still have those jingles?] I certainly do!"
Ambition/Dream job "To work on Radio 2."
Secret skills "I'm a qualified chef. And I can also do an impression of a train approaching a station. Listen carefully..." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

Face behind the voice Rob Charles Liverpool Live

Age 60
Current job
 Has presented the breakfast show on Liverpool Live (Mon–Fri, 6am–10) since 2022. "It's bright and cheerful. I always play the music that makes you feel 'up'! No slow songs! At that time of the morning you need to be uplifted." He also presents Songs That Don't Get Played on the Radio Anymore (Sat, 7pm–9), a show syndicated to 20 stations around the world. "Radio stations seem to play the same 1,500 songs over and over again. The number of responses I get – 'I've not heard this for ages!'"
CV Born in Nottingham, he did two years in catering college. "My goal was always radio, but my dad said, 'You always need to fall back on something.' First heard on hospital radio in Wythenshawe in 1982, he got his first professional gig on Radio West in Ireland in 1986. He then worked for the Voice of Peace in Israel (a station to which he subsequently returned in 2011).

He worked at Radio Caroline, and then the pirate KFM, working with the likes of Caroline Aherne, Craig Cash, Jon Ronson and Terry Christian. Next came Radio Top Shop in Manchester and Liverpool. He then did stints on Rock FM, Century Radio, Magic 999 (now Greatest Hits Lancashire) and The Bee. Magic 999 had evolved out of Red Rose Radio, a title Charles bought and relaunched in 2022. He hosts their breakfast show. "Yes, I'm doing two stations at once. In between the songs, I pre-record links for both stations!" He also presents on the English-speaking Spanish station TKO. He joined Liverpool Live in 2021. He is the "Forever FM" DJ on Peter Kay's series Car Share. Since 2017 he has been the ground announcer for Preston North End.
Social media – yes or no? "Definitely yes. I can find out what's going on instantly and people can find out what's going on with me instantly as well!"
Best moments "Working with Caroline and Craig. They were nice people, really down-to-earth."

Worst moment Interviewing one of my heroes, Hugh Cornwell of the Stranglers. For some bizarre reason I kept calling him Hugh Grant! He wasn't best pleased."
Off air He lives in Chorley, Lancs, with his wife Kathy, who works for the NHS. His son is Jamie Smith, bass guitarist with the Forensics. His daughters are Sophie and Katie. "Sophie's due to make me a granddad for the first time."
First radio memory "Listening to Excerpt from a Teenage Opera by Keith West on Radio Caroline."
Favourite broadcasters "Kenny Everett. When I was working for hospital radio, I sent him a letter and asked him to do me some jingles. He went out of his way and put on the envelope, 'Don't tell everybody. They'll all want one.' [Do you still have those jingles?] I certainly do!"
Ambition/Dream job "To work on Radio 2."
Secret skills "I'm a qualified chef. And I can also do an impression of a train approaching a station. Listen carefully..." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

Face behind the voice Rob Charles Liverpool Live

Age 60
Current job
 Has presented the breakfast show on Liverpool Live (Mon–Fri, 6am–10) since 2022. "It's bright and cheerful. I always play the music that makes you feel 'up!' No slow songs! At that time of the morning you need to be uplifted." He also presents Songs That Don't Get Played on the Radio Anymore (Sat, 7pm–9), a show syndicated to 20 stations around the world. "Radio stations seem to play the same 1,500 songs over and over again. The number of responses I get – 'I've not heard this for ages!'"
CV Born in Nottingham, he did two years in catering college. "My goal was always radio, but my dad said, 'You always need to fall back on something.' First heard on hospital radio in Wythenshawe in 1982, he got his first professional gig on Radio West in Ireland in 1986. He then worked for the Voice of Peace in Israel (a station to which he subsequently returned in 2011).

He worked at Radio Caroline, and then the pirate KFM, working with the likes of Caroline Aherne, Craig Cash, Jon Ronson and Terry Christian. Next came Radio Top Shop in Manchester and Liverpool. He then did stints on Rock FM, Century Radio, Magic 999 (now Greatest Hits Lancashire) and The Bee. Magic 999 had evolved out of Red Rose Radio, a title Charles bought and relaunched in 2022. He hosts their breakfast show. "Yes, I'm doing two stations at once. In between the songs, I pre-record links for both stations!" He also presents on the English-speaking Spanish station TKO. He joined Liverpool Live in 2021. He is the "Forever FM" DJ on Peter Kay's series Car Share. Since 2017 he has been the ground announcer for Preston North End.
Social media – yes or no? "Definitely yes. I can find out what's going on instantly and people can find out what's going on with me instantly as well!"
Best moments "Working with Caroline and Craig. They were nice people, really down-to-earth."

Worst moment Interviewing one of my heroes, Hugh Cornwell of the Stranglers. For some bizarre reason I kept calling him Hugh Grant! He wasn't best pleased."
Off air He lives in Chorley, Lancs, with his wife Kathy, who works for the NHS. His son is Jamie Smith, bass guitarist with the Forensics. His daughters are Sophie and Katie. "Sophie's due to make me a granddad for the first time."
First radio memory "Listening to Excerpt from a Teenage Opera by Keith West on Radio Caroline."
Favourite broadcasters "Kenny Everett. When I was working for hospital radio, I sent him a letter and asked him to do me some jingles. He went out of his way and put on the envelope, 'Don't tell everybody. They'll all want one.' [Do you still have those jingles?] I certainly do!"
Ambition/Dream job "To work on Radio 2."
Secret skills "I'm a qualified chef. And I can also do an impression of a train approaching a station. Listen carefully..." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

Face behind the voice Rob Charles Liverpool Live

Age 60
Current job
Has presented the breakfast show on Liverpool Live (Mon–Fri, 6am–10) since 2022. "It's bright and cheerful. I always play the music that makes you feel 'up! No slow songs! At that time of the morning you need to be uplifted." He also presents Songs That Don't Get Played on the Radio Anymore (Sat, 7pm–9), a show syndicated to 20 stations around the world. "Radio stations seem to play the same 1,500 songs over and over again. The number of responses I get – 'I've not heard this for ages!'" CV Born in Nottingham, he did two years in catering college. "My goal was always radio, but my dad said, 'You always need to fall back on something.' First heard on hospital radio in Wythenshawe in 1982, he got his first professional gig on Radio West in Ireland in 1986. He then worked for the Voice of Peace in Israel (a station to which he subsequently returned in 2011).

He worked at Radio Caroline, and then the pirate KFM, working with the likes of Caroline Aherne, Craig Cash, Jon Ronson and Terry Christian. Next came Radio Top Shop in Manchester and Liverpool. He then did stints on Rock FM, Century Radio, Magic 999 (now Greatest Hits Lancashire) and The Bee. Magic 999 had evolved out of Red Rose Radio, a title Charles bought and relaunched in 2022. He hosts their breakfast show. "Yes, I'm doing two stations at once. In between the songs, I pre-record links for both stations!" He also presents on the English-speaking Spanish station TKO. He joined Liverpool Live in 2021. He is the "Forever FM" DJ on Peter Kay's series Car Share. Since 2017 he has been the ground announcer for Preston North End. Social media – yes or no? "Definitely yes. I can find out what's going on instantly and people can find out what's going on with me instantly as well!" Best moments "Working with Caroline and Craig. They were nice people, really down-to-earth."

Worst moment Interviewing one of my heroes, Hugh Cornwell of the Stranglers. For some bizarre reason I kept calling him Hugh Grant! He wasn't best pleased." Off air He lives in Chorley, Lancs, with his wife Kathy, who works for the NHS. His son is Jamie Smith, bass guitarist with the Forensics. His daughters are Sophie and Katie. "Sophie's due to make me a granddad for the first time." First radio memory "Listening to Excerpt from a Teenage Opera by Keith West on Radio Caroline." Favourite broadcasters "Kenny Everett. When I was working for hospital radio, I sent him a letter and asked him to do me some jingles. He went out of his way and put on the envelope, 'Don't tell everybody. They'll all want one.' [Do you still have those jingles?] I certainly do!" Ambition/Dream job "To work on Radio 2." Secret skills "I'm a qualified chef. And I can also do an impression of a train approaching a station. Listen carefully..." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

IT'S A BEAUTIFUL day," says Alfie Boe, taking in the morning from the window of his apartment in Salt Lake City, Utah. And if anybody has an excuse for thinking so, it's the Lancashire-born tenor – famous for headline-stealing performances in Les Misérables and La Bohème in the West End and on Broadway, his "double act" with Michael Ball, his platinum album sales, and a duet with American soprano Renée Fleming on the balcony at Buckingham Palace during the Queen's Diamond Jubilee concert.

Odd then, that his new autobiography, on the eve of the 49-year-old's eagerly awaited UK solo tour, should be called Face the Music.

From the outside, the Alfie Boe story is one of a succession of benevolent sliding doors: time as a mechanic at the TVR car factory near Blackpool where a customer with music-business connections heard him singing; a successful audition for the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company with sheet music borrowed from the local library; a friendship with Peter Phillips, Princess Anne's son; and meeting and working with Michael Ball on a dismal production of, appropriately enough, Kismet ("It sold out because people wanted to see how bad it was. But it brought us

'A voice was telling me that I was going to have to face trauma' together... He's the cuddly theatre luvvie and I'm the grumpy bd exasperated by everything that he says. Except that I'm not really, I love him to pieces"). Hard work did the rest.

This was terrain also covered in his first autobiography, Alfie: My Story, in 2012 but, he says, "a lot has happened since then that I needed to talk about... Everybody has things in their lives that they brush under the carpet but it's important to bring things to the fore and face them. If you don't, they fester and eat away at you. That's what the title is about. The book is me talking about finding my way through things." The breakdown of his marriage to Sarah, the mother of his two children, is the predominant theme running through the book, but it also embraces a period in rehab, the death of his father, and his mother, who is now living with Alzheimer's.

That these life-changing events ran concurrently with a successful career only throws them into greater relief. He writes of a time in 2017: "I felt like I was flying. Things were going great with Ball and Boe; we'd had two number one albums, won the Classical Brit award for best group, I was having dinner with the Queen and

'I WAS BROKEN
...IT WAS TOUGH'

Tenor Alfie Boe seemed to have it all, both professionally and at home. But things were falling apart, as his new book reveals...

TAKING THE PLUNGE
Boe confronting his demons with "Ice Man" Wim Hof in Freeze the Fear

roses named after me. Even better than all that, I had a wife and a family, and we lived in a beautiful home. Despite all that good stuff, I'd had this weird notion swirling around me... a voice telling me that to become a better person, a better man, I was going to have to face trauma."

Fast forward six years – past the break-up, the grief, transatlantic house moves and a hectic work schedule either side of the pandemic – and, if he's not quite over the trauma, then he is in a better place: "I found the process of putting the book together therapeutic," he says. "Recording the audio version was hard because you're sat with a pair of headphones on listening to your voice telling yourself your story... It was hard to read out the tough chapters. When I had to read them, I lost it for the rest of the day. I was broken up. It was really tough. I realised then that there were things I hadn't really let go of."

THE BATTLE IS ongoing. "I've been on my own for a long time since the breakdown of my marriage, and I wanted to address things and close the door... not throw it away or forget about it but try to move on and see a different world for myself." Group therapy in rehab helped, as did going under the ice in BBC1's Freeze the Fear with Wim Hof in 2022. He has tried the psychoactive brew ayahuasca, which creates an altered sense of consciousness, and he advocates deep-breathing mindset exercises designed to attain a brain reset. "My life has changed considerably," he says. "And it's acceptance that I've got to this stage that made me want to put my words out there, to try to help other people who may be struggling to get to that place of acceptance."

Boe promises that Face the Music is "more than an autobiography" and, as part mea culpa, part self-help manual, part love letter to a time when he seemed to have everything, that is certainly the case. It's impossible to read and not want him to enjoy Act III of his remarkable life.

Artistic friction

Sparks fly when art and ego clash

THE EXHIBITIONIST
CHARLOTTE MENDELSON
Book at Bedtime

Mon–Fri 10.45pm Radio 4

Two artists in a relationship can be a source for contention, with clashing egos coming into play. Such is the case for the Hanrahan family in The Exhibitionist (Picador, £9.99), as they prepare for an exhibition of Ray's work. The toxicity of the family's relationships is front and centre, exacerbated by the stresses brought about by the impending event. Pacey and witty, Mendelson's novel is a wry look at middle-class dysfunction.

Friday 9.00pm BBC2

The little black dress, the tweed suit, the chain handbag... you can't talk about fashion without mentioning the woman who has inspired countless designers, and whose legacy lives on in the brand she created. The controversial figure's life is explored in an updated biography by Justine Picardie: Coco Chanel: the Legend and the Life (HarperCollins, £35) charts Chanel's traumatic childhood and rise to fame and fortune through interviews with friends and relatives. RHIANNON THOMAS

42: THE WILDLY IMPROBABLE IDEAS OF DOUGLAS ADAMS
EDITED BY KEVIN JON DAVIES
Desert Island Discs

(Douglas Adams) BBC Sounds

When it came to ideas, Douglas Adams was so far ahead of the game that he could have been from another cosmos. Very apt for someone who dreamt up The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Universe and was a script editor on Doctor Who. Which means that 42 (Unbound, £30), Kevin Jon Davies's loving curation of Adams' ephemera, is like gold dust, revealing both Adams's vast talent and a heroic disdain for the deadline. Formidably researched, mind-bogglingly entertaining. MARK BRAXTON

GLAD TO BE GREY

Silver-leaved plants are a perfect foil for colour – and climate change means we may rely on them more, says Joe Swift

LOOKING FOR A silver lining? Silver- and grey-leaved plants are ideal for breaking up a predominantly green-leaved border or introducing a light, almost ephemeral touch to a planting scheme. They also make a fine foil for flowers of neighbouring plants, and one trick designers use is to plant them to help a border recede visually and make a garden feel bigger.

Lavender and santolina are probably the best known, and demonstrate that silver leaves are a sign a plant loves to bask in full sun and can cope with hot, dry conditions. They tend to do best in poorer soils, too, although most will grow fine in an average well-drained garden soil, like most of us have.

So which to go for? Stachys byzantina “Silver Carpet” (lamb’s ear) is easy to grow and has soft, downy, tactile leaves. Use it for softening the edges of paving or in a gravel garden. Lychnis coronaria (Rose campion) is a plant I think we’ll be seeing more of with climate change, as it can cope with most conditions. It has silver-grey, felt-textured carpeting leaves and bright magenta flowers, and it freely self-seeds around – yes, we do like that!

For something more dramatic, how about a cardoon (Cynara cardunculus), a wonderfully statuesque perennial that can reach way above head height (up to 2.4m). The foliage is clump-forming, the silver leaves deeply cut, and in summer huge purple thistle-like flowers are followed by globe-artichoke-looking fruit (it’s the stems that are sometimes eaten, braised like celery).

Artemisias are worth considering, too. Shrubby artemisias like A “Powis Castle” (wormwood) have soft, fine foliage, so look like small clouds in a border, whereas the perennial A ludoviciana “Silver Queen” (western mugwort) is a great ground-coverer with long, slender leaves, and produces small mimosa-type flowers late in the year.

But they’re not all sun-lovers. Brunnera macrophylla “Looking Glass” (Siberian bugloss) covers the ground well, with large, heart-shaped leaves that look crisply frosted in the middle to contrast with the green margin. It’s spot-on to lift shady areas, and as a bonus delivers sprays of light blue flowers in spring.

If you don’t have the perfect conditions (if, for instance, your garden is on heavy clay), grow them in pots and containers, in soil-based compost with added grit to improve drainage, and place in a sunny spot. You can even try placing the pot directly into a sunny border.

Joe Swift is a presenter on Gardeners’ World, Fridays BBC2

BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO...

Knowing your soil

Silver foliage and white flowers help brighten borders. Below: wormwood, Siberian bugloss and rose campion. Below left: lamb's ear

To choose plants that grow well (and avoid those that won't) it's important to know what soil you have in your garden. Two tests will give you the answer – but don't forget that adding plenty of organic matter will help the structure and fertility of any soil type

TEST YOUR SOIL STRUCTURE

Grab a handful of soil and try to make a ball of it in your hand...

■ SANDY SOIL

No chance, it'll fall apart and is gritty to feel.

■ CLAY SOIL

A ball will form easily and stay together. It will feel sticky and smooth when rubbed between fingers.

■ PEATY SOIL

Dampen it before the ball test and it'll feel spongy. Holds loads of water when wet but can be bone-dry in summer.

■ CHALKY SOIL

Will most often have visible lumps of chalk or stones in it. Plenty of manure will help overall moisture retention and nutrient levels.

■ LOAMY SOIL

It will form a ball but break up easily, too. The perfect soil for growing a wide range of plants. Holds moisture but never waterlogs, holds nutrients, warms up quickly in spring and is light and easy to dig.

TEST YOUR pH

This is a measure of how acidic or alkaline the soil is, and a cheap soil test kit will do it.

■ A pH OF 7 is neutral, perfect for growing the widest range of plants.

■ A pH OF BELOW 7 means your soil is on the acidic side, so ideal for ericaceous plants (azaleas, rhododendrons, camellias).

■ A pH OF ABOVE 7 means your soil is alkaline, which means plants like dianthus (pinks), lavender and ceanothus will grow well. But if soil gets very alkaline, it can lock up nutrients so limit the range of plants further.

Jamie Cooks the Mediterranean
Sunday 8.00pm Channel 4

THERE'S NO BETTER way to dig into a destination than breaking bread with the locals. And here to guide us to some new foodie hotspots is Jamie Oliver, back from something of a career sabbatical with his new Channel 4 show, Jamie Cooks the Mediterranean.

We all know about the once-Naked Chef's love of Italy and the produce-led simplicity of its food. So it's refreshing to see him graze his way through Greek mezze, northern Spain's seafood, France's Provençal dishes and even Tunisia's street food. (Expect plenty of lemon squeezes and theatrically drizzled olive oil.) Here's where to follow in Jamie's Med-fed footsteps.

GREECE Fresh seafood, interesting influences

In the opening episode, Jamie visits the coastal city of Thessaloniki, Greece's first Unesco City of Gastronomy. Here, visitors should wander the streets behind the port to find delightful family-run fish restaurants. One highlight for seafood fans is O Petros, a casual taverna where host Petros will take you to choose fish from the fishmonger's icy trays, then prepare it any way you like – grilled, fried, carpaccio, you name it. A city of strong Turkish and Balkan influences, Thessaloniki has specialities such as keftedakia meatballs and bekri meze (stewed pork).

On Skopelos, a sleepy island three and a half hours by ferry onward from Thessaloniki, Jamie joins two top chefs as they roast great hunks of goat and monkfish, dangling from iron hooks over smouldering olive-wood logs. The place to eat here is along the waterfront in pretty Skopelos town, a white-washed grid of pretty alleys – try the grapevine-shaded Perivoli Restaurant – and in beautiful coves such as Agnontas, where beachfront eatery Korali does huge seafood pastas with a tranquil bay view.

FRANCE Hearty stews and light rosés

The sun-baked southern region of Provence, famous for its hearty fare and idyllic country villages, is the focus for Jamie's France episode. Fly into the coastal city of Marseille for some of its boldest and most unique bites: this is the home of the world-famous fish stew bouillabaisse (best sampled at Le Rhul, whose chefs have been

TASTING THE MAGICAL MED

Jamie Oliver's latest foodie travel series takes him on a delicious tour from the Greek islands to North Africa

MARITIME MENU
The waters of Marseille provide an abundance of fresh seafood perfecting the dish since 1948). Less famous over here, but equally delicious, are anchoïade, a tapenade-like dip made with anchovies, garlic and white wine, and pistou, a pesto-type sauce that sings with Mediterranean herbs.

Extend your Provence trip beyond the city for a real taste of Provençal cuisine: key stops might include the time-warp food markets in villages such as L'Isle-sur-la-Sorgue and Saint-Rémy-de-Provence; a picnic in a rural vineyard; or a cooking class in the gorgeously preserved medieval town of Avignon. And don't miss a tour of one of its wineries: head to Le Domaine de Marie or Chêne Bleu to try the local rosés and stay overnight.

SPAIN Sun-ripened savouries and surrealism

While many are familiar with Spain's southern beaches, not enough tourists venture up to Spain's far north. Cadaqués, right at its north-eastern tip, is singled out by Jamie in his show for its seafood-packed rice dishes and Catalan delicacies. In between pottering around Cadaqués' red-roofed old town with its art galleries and Salvador Dalí museum, be sure to tuck into restaurant Es Baluard's famous lobster rice, fresh shellfish such as prawns and razor clams, and the local vermut (vermouth aperitif).

If you're following Jamie to Spain's number one tourist hotspot, Barcelona, expect to share its lauded restaurant scene with several thousand others. Skip La Boqueria market – permanently packed – and seek out low-key tapas bars outside the touristy Gothic Quarter, such as Can Codina in Gràcia, and El 58 in Poble Nou. Must-eats here are croquetas, grilled calçots (like spring onions), potato-filled bombas balls and escalivada (roasted vegetables in olive oil). Lunch alongside one of Barcelona's beaches is also a thrill: try stylish Barceloneta restaurant Agua for beach-clubby takes on gazpacho, black squid-ink rice and garlic prawns.

TUNISIA Spices and culture shock

North Africa may not come to mind when you think of the Med, but Tunisia sits on the other side of this vast sea, flying the flag for its spiced, slow-stewed delights. This is couscous central, with Jamie getting a masterclass in these tiny grains of durum wheat semolina, served alongside many Tunisian meat or fish dishes. Try it in the capital, Tunis, at traditional restaurants like El Mida, or L'Arbre à Couscous, where you can sample several styles in one sitting. Tunis's Marché Centrale food market is not to be missed.

Leaving the capital, foodie memories to be made here include a stop in a Bedouin village around Mahdia, for home-made flatbreads, olives and olive oil. Or a spell in seaside Sousse, where hosts at the women-run Dar Omi guesthouse can take you to a market ahead of a cooking masterclass. Wherever you go, indulging in a brik (stuffed pastry) as well as chorba lentil soup and the shakshuka-like oja, which is made with spicy merguez sausage – should be on your checklist.

THE TAX MAN COMETH?

Higher interest rates on savings are good news – but they could mean paying more tax

UNTIL RECENTLY, FEW people had to worry about tax on their savings. All basic rate taxpayers get £1,000 personal savings allowance, which means the first £1,000 of interest on savings is tax-free. That covered most people when interest rates were low: a year ago, with interest rates around 2%, you could have had £50,000 savings without needing to worry about tax.

‘Savings of £16,667 could trigger a tax bill’

But now best-buy savings rates are 5%, or even 6% in a one-year bond. At those rates, savings of £20,000 or £16,667 will trigger a tax bill. If you are a higher rate taxpayer, the allowance is cut to £500, meaning it's even more likely that tax will be due.

Some people, however, get a bigger tax-free savings allowance. If your taxable income apart from savings interest is less than £17,570 a year you get an extra allowance of up to £5,000 a year. You work out how much that allowance is by subtracting your taxable income from £17,570. If your income from wages and pensions is, say, £14,000, you can have £3,750 at the “starting rate for savings”, which is 0%, so no tax is due. You also get the £1,000 personal savings allowance on top, making a total of £4,750 savings interest that's tax-free. Even if your savings earn interest of 6% a year, you could have more than £76,000 in savings before any tax was due on it.

If your taxable income is below £12,570 then more savings interest can be tax-free, as no tax is due on income below that level. For example, if your only income is a new state pension of £10,600 a year, the next £1,970 of savings interest is tax-free. You also get the £5,000 starting rate and the £1,000 personal savings allowance, making a total of £7,970 tax-free interest.

BANKS AND BUILDING societies inform the Revenue of all interest earned, and your tax code should be adjusted to recover any tax due.

Your job? If you have a partner, it may be worth moving savings to the person with the lower income to maximise those tax-free amounts. If tax is due, you should consider moving some savings into a tax-free cash Isa: you can put up to £20,000 every tax year into one.

RT MONEY PARTNER

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR HOME'S EQUITY

Unlock tax-free cash from your property

Homeowners who have lived in their property for many years and have seen the value of their home increase are likely to have built up a wealth of equity. A popular way to access this equity as tax-free cash is with an equity release plan.

Radio Times has partnered with Age Partnership+, part of the UK's number one equity release adviser*, to bring you an equity release service. Their team are available to explore your equity release options if you're a homeowner aged 55 or over, and tell you everything you need to know including whether your entitlement to means-tested benefits could be affected now or in the future.

With a no-obligation personalised illustration they will help you understand the features and risks, and explain that equity release may involve a lifetime mortgage, which is secured against your property, or a home reversion plan. Equity release requires paying off any existing mortgage, and any money released, plus accrued interest would be repaid upon death or moving into long-term care. Equity release will reduce the value of your estate and impact funding long-term care. Only if your case completes would an advice fee of £1,995 be payable. Other lender and solicitor fees may apply.

Word of the week Murmuration

Soon, huge groups of starlings will be seen twisting and wheeling through the autumn sky.

The traditional term for these birds, one of the best-known collective nouns, is a "murmuration", a word based on the Latin murmuratio, that described the continuous utterance of low and barely audible cries. The term was applied to flocks of starlings and their intricate flight patterns as early as the 15th century, found in glossaries of terms for hunting, hawking and heraldry. Our main source for many of our most popular collective nouns is The Book of Saint Albans (published in 1486), a list of over 160 group names for beasts of the chase and characters on the medieval stage. A "murmuration" of starlings was probably inspired by the rushing hum of the birds.

GOLD MEDAL...

The BBC's coverage of the World Athletics Championships in Budapest made for joyous viewing. All of our three children sat with us, something they rarely do nowadays, to watch the drama unfold, and we revelled in British and international successes alike.

When the world around us seems to be falling apart, one politician and natural disaster at a time, it was a pleasure to sit and watch something together as a family that was inspiring.

Alex Baldock

... OR A TAILENDER?

Great to see the BBC giving so much time to coverage of the World Athletics, but I can't be the only one who would rather watch the actual athletics, rather than listen to 15 minutes' debate about whether some plucky Brit can overcome their ankle/knee/elbow injury and get into the medals, followed by another 20 minutes' debate about why they only came fourth or fifth. Watching the action is always more exciting than listening to people talking about it.

A HERO OF TODAY

I was riveted by The Price of Truth (21 August C4), concerning Dmitry Muratov (below) and his heroic efforts to continue to publish a free newspaper in Russia. Not a story about a long-dead hero of the 20th century or a much-loved interviewer, but a story of the here and now. Of course we should remember those who have gone before, but it would be nice to give credit to those people in the world today who are desperately trying to maintain freedom in the face of incredible odds.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Cowboy scheduling

Yellowstone (Friday Channel 5) is one of the smartest, most impressive and addictive drama series presently on offer and, like many others, I settled in for a new regular treat. How disappointing that after just two episodes, Channel 5 shoved it back to 11pm (making room for Jane McDonald). On 1 September it drifted farther away to midnight. How can a series of such quality (a number one show in the USA) be treated this way?

Too many good series seem to fall into this fluctuating schedule on a few channels. Shame on you, Channel 5, you had us hooked and then cast us aside.

Steve Paton Harrow, north-west London

Many of you are irritated by these constant scheduling changes, but one solution for Yellowstone is to watch free on My5.

Steve Paton wins a black Roberts Ortus 2 clock radio. Sleek and practical, this DAB/DAB+/FM radio has pre-sets for up to 20 stations, both a radio and a buzzer alarm with snooze function and an audio fade-out setting for listening in bed. The display light can be adjusted to dim or black-out at night. The Ortus 2 also features a USB socket for a smartphone connection and can double up as a speaker for your iPod or MP3 player. a sermon, that the congregation were singing, "O still, small voice of calm." This is from the hymn Dear Lord and Father of Mankind – the last few verses of a long poem by John Greenleaf Whittier about the evils of brewing soma, a hallucinogen.

As the perpetrator used hallucinogens, it certainly added an extra dimension for me.

OUT OF STEP

There must have been cries of "Come the Revolution!" up and down the country after the tone-deaf programme about The Royal Borough: Kensington and Chelsea (24 August Channel 5). While the rest of us worry about how to pay the next bill, we were invited to be amused by the goings-on of rich airheads in a part of London that, behind all the wealth, actually has a high level of poverty. Ghastly people throughout.

Alison Young

ENCHANTING

The Great Mountain Sheep Gather (repeated 27 August BBC4) took me back to the upper Eskdale valley in the Lake District, which I was lucky enough to visit with my husband on many occasions.

What made it so stunning for me was the absence of background music. I could hear the voices of the shepherds, the sounds of the sheep and the dogs as well as the calls of birds, the souging of the wind and even the silence. The readings by Maxine Peake of short poems specially commissioned for the programme added extra depth and delight. My Jack Russell was almost as enthralled as I was.

THE DAY ROCK DIES?

Another nail in the coffin of local radio with the announcement by Bernie Keith of the axing of his Saturday-evening programme, Rock 'n' roll Heaven (Radio Northampton and other regions). In the 70s we had Stuart Colman's regular Saturday show on Radio 2, then more recently on Radio 2 Mark Lamarr kept the rock 'n' roll flame burning. On national radio thereafter, there has been only an occasional programme hosted by Richard Hawley.

All we have had since has popped up on local radio. Geoff Barker (Radio Devon), Dr Rock (Radio York), Spencer Leigh (Radio Merseyside) and of course Mr Keith. As the only show of its kind left on the BBC, it had listeners around the world, and it is a scandal it's being removed from the schedule.

MUSIC OR NOISE?

We were looking forward to some calming, beautiful sounds in the BBC Proms Mindful Mix concert (27 August BBC4), but some of this programme verged on the discordant! The singers could not be blamed: their performance was so obviously skilful. But if the mix could have included, for instance, Plaisir d'amour, or some medieval folk music, with these voices, the evening could have been memorably divine.

Jean Lamb

DO I LOVE YOU...

Knowing little or nothing about Northern Soul I tuned into BBC Proms (26 August BBC2) thinking it probably wasn't for me, but how wrong I was. It was a joyful evening that made my spirits lift.

Those six superb singers put the BBC Concert Orchestra in the shade. The audience were obviously having a ball and were as much a part of the performance as the musicians!

places, rather than all the evil being put on the institutional church. My father remembered in the 1950s illegitimate children being given to families to work on their farms, effectively as slave labour.

It's too easy to pin it all on the priests and nuns.

What sort of families did they come from to be so abusive themselves? Not happy and healthy ones.

CRUNCH POINT

I hadn't intended to watch The Woman in the Wall, but I'm finding it compelling. I didn't anticipate that the combination of semi-fictional current events and history would be so powerful. I had to smile, however, when I heard a reference to a "game" where it was thought great fun to put two crisps of different flavours in the mouth together, a nod to the same quip by Dougal McGuire of Father Ted fame. Surely not a coincidence?

THE INSIDE TRACK

Ex-para's war against military inaccuracies

Eagle-eyed Radio Times readers regularly point out historical inaccuracies, wardrobe errors and anachronisms creeping into period dramas with a military theme. But why, when so much care and time are obviously taken, do such errors slip through?

On-set expert Paul Biddiss is no stranger to this question in his line of work, having spent 24 years in the British Army as a paratrooper before becoming a military adviser on TV series including Trigger Point, Strike Back and War and Peace, as well as Sam Mendes's First World War epic 1917 and forthcoming films Napoleon and Gladiator 2.

"The military adviser always gets blamed," says Biddiss. "I can only say, 'We wouldn't do it like that,' but if a director wants to do something, they're going to do it. I try to get

'Nothing's ever going to be 100 per cent right' things as close to reality as I can, but nothing's ever going to be 100 per cent accurate. I'm creating drama, not a documentary."

PAUL BIDISS

For Biddiss, the role is 60 per cent research and 40 per cent his experience of being a soldier. "Weaponry and tactics change throughout the ages, but how a soldier reacts to a situation will be the same, whether they're carrying a spear, an M4 assault rifle or a lightsaber."

A military adviser is involved across the board – from helping with costumes

COMBAT READY

and weapons to hiring extras, where Biddiss's selection process is nearly as tough as the Army's. So that stunts look realistic, he tests extras' physical and mental robustness before giving them rigorous training. Some extras have even enjoyed Biddiss's bootcamps so much, they've joined the Army!

The ideal is to bring a military adviser into the writers' room, where everything can be thrashed out well in advance of filming. But tight budgets mean this doesn't always happen, and if there is no military adviser on set, it's inevitable that mistakes can occur.

Biddiss has also on occasion suggested rewrites. "The Ministry of Defence and the US Department of Defence get very worried about how drama series portray the military. No one's an angel, there are some bad eggs, but you've got to give an honest representation."

A popular TV programme he worked on once wanted to include a storyline where soldiers kill children in Afghanistan under orders, but he told them, "No, I will walk away now [if you do that]."

"No soldier in the world would have subscribed to that. People will start to believe what they see on TV, but it'll be wrong. That also puts soldiers at risk, because there are people that will use that to fuel their own agenda." And for obvious reasons, specific technical details aren't shown, such as the process of making a bomb or defusing it.

Despite his defence of the adviser's role, Biddiss understands viewers' desire for accuracy. His late father was one of the paratroopers who landed on the banks of the Suez Canal in 1956, so when it came to re-creating the scene in series two of The Crown, he was desperate to get the job.

But when he arrived on set he had only a day to prepare and the right kit wasn't readily available, the parachutes were all wrong and they didn't have an actor to play the role of a jumping instructor, who dispatches the parachutists out of the aeroplane. "It's only because I was passionate about it that I was running around like a lunatic to make it work," recalls Biddiss.

"The director was like, 'It's only a bit of drama,' and I said, 'To you, it's drama. To me, my dad jumped on this. If he's looking down and I get this wrong, he's going to haunt me.'"

For veterans, and people who have lived through events that are later dramatised, the details, of course, really do matter. "You've got to be very diplomatic," Biddiss explains. "You have to understand that the production can't always get the exact detail or the exact tank, or the director wants to do something a certain way. My job is to find a way to make it work."

DAVINA McCALL

Midlife finds the presenter busier than ever – and with no time for celebrity dating...

What's the view from your sofa?

A coffee table, two fluffy armchairs and the comfiest sofa ever. There's a fire underneath the television. The TV is low so you don't strain your neck looking up!

Who controls the remote?

As a blended family, we're unbelievably diplomatic! Either we all watch a series, which is quite hard, or we pick gangs to watch with.

You've made documentaries on the menopause and contraception. Why is women's health overlooked?

Mainly it's historical. Women in general – their health, their rights – were secondary to men. We're not quite there yet, but the tide is turning. I'm still talking about the menopause because there's a new flow of women coming into perimenopause. I really enjoy it. It's given me a sense of purpose.

What issue do you want to tackle next?

There are so many things that affect a woman and how she bleeds that never get talked about – there's no research into it. Some women have horrifically heavy periods, and we're told to pull our socks up and get on with it.

Are women still under more pressure than men when it comes to looks?

We're fed this stuff all the time that there's a uniform face we should all have. I got called a toucan because my nose is absolutely massive. But I love my big nose and it's very me! And it's very my family. Jon Snow once said to me, "Oh my God, you have the most amazing nose." Jon, you made my life!

Do female TV presenters have a shorter shelf life than their male counterparts?

Me, Sara Cox, Zoe Ball... we got called ladettes [by the media], which made me laugh because I think of ladettes as beer-swilling and I haven't had a drink for 30 years. We were like, "Sod you, we can do anything that you can do." I've always felt like I could probably get any job that a man could get. Now, we're getting to the age where predominantly a woman would have [previously] been shelved and sort-of retired. I don't think it's like that any more. I'm still working a lot. Claudia [Winkleman], Tess [Daly], Sara, Zoe... we're a new group of midlife women who are still doing it.

Your new show, My Mum, Your Dad, in which single parents are nominated by their grown-up children to find love, has been called a "midlife Love Island". Why have dating shows usually been the preserve of the young?

When you're trying to get 20-year-olds to date, it's easy because, at 20, you're just thinking, "Do I fancy you? Yeah. Brilliant!" With a dating show for people in midlife... it's not just about a sexual connection, although the immediate spark has to be there. You need to go, "I fancy them a bit," but getting to know somebody is a lot more important. Everyone our age comes with baggage. But that's what makes people interesting and sometimes it's what hooks you in.

MY TV SNACKS

My partner is a snack fanatic! So carrots, houmous and peanuts, then the crisps and chocolate come out. You think it's grazing, but it adds up. I've had to stop snacking because you're sitting down, not exercising and scoffing your face. And you've had your dinner!

Love Island is famous for bikini-clad women and bare torsos. Is My Mum, Your Dad the same?

It's so not about that! It wasn't hot enough to sunbathe much because it was filmed in the UK in May. There were no cameras in the bedroom.

Would you be tempted by a celebrity dating app like Raya?

I'd rather be celibate for the rest of my life! It would be too embarrassing! At our age, it's up to your mates to sort you out. I matchmade a couple of friends – I reckon they're going to get married. But men don't stay single for very long.

Do you bring your personal experience to your new show?

I think people know I've got divorced, I have a new partner, and we've all got kids. I have an understanding of what that's like and, hopefully, they know from my Streetmate days that if I can help anybody fall in love, I'm on it!
